SUMMARY.

The Tuscania, which was attached to a convoy, received no warning, and did not sight the submarine.

Just at dusk a torpedo struck the vessel amidships, and immediately afterwards another torpedo passed astern.

The Tuscania at once took a big list. The men were called to their boat stations.

The soldiers lined up in the darkness. Their courage and discipline were superb.

The list made it impossible for the lifeboats to be lowered properly. The survivors were quickly landed.

The Tuscania remained afloat for four hours before she sank. The rest of the convoy is safe.

A message from Washington says that the nation was saddened by the early report of the Tuscania disaster.

Later news caused many to view the sinking merely as an unfortunate war incident, which must be expected.

The opinion is unanimous that the disaster will tend to speed-up America in the war.

The British successfully carried out a raid east of Armentieres, and took some prisoners.

Hostile artillery is reported to be active at Cambrai and Lens.

The enemy's artillery is also active north-west of St. Quentin, and east of Monchy-le-Preux.

A French communique reports most lively, reciprocal artillery fire in the Chavigny, Forgny, and Filain region.

Artillery fire has also occurred at Samogneux and Hill 344, on the right of the Meuse, and at Hartmannsweilerkopf.

After artillery preparation the Germans unsuccessfully attempted to penetrate the French lines at Banholtz, in Alsace.

German newspapers publish sensational reports of the decision of the Austro-German headquarters staff.

They indicate the completion of plans for a campaign on a big scale against northern Russia and the Western Powers.

Ludendorff, it is stated, insisted upon special measures by both Governments against the revolutionary movement.

A German journal declares that the decisions regarding the East will be different from the Brest Litovsk negotiations.

It is stated in Berlin that the Central Powers' war conference was mainly occupied with the peace proposals to the Ukraine.

The Government considers that peace is likely, though a settlement with Trotsky is improbable.

General Alexieff, with 34,000 Cossacks, is advancing in the direction of Kharkoff to meet the Bolsheviks.

It is reported that great numbers of officers and soldiers have volunteered for Alexieff's army.

Heavy fighting preceded the fall of Kieff. The Bolsheviks brought up 200 guns.

The Ukrainians were forced to retreat. They blew up the bridge across the Dnieper.

When the Bolsheviks ordered a Polish army corps to march against the Ukraine the Poles flatly refused.

The Bolsheviks then attempted to disarm one regiment, and murdered two officers, with revolting cruelty.

General Mannerheim has captured Kemi, the Red Guards' last stronghold in North Finland.

The civil war is now confined to South Finland, particularly Helsingfors.

The Allies in Italy brought down 56 enemy aeroplanes during the past 11 days.

The Arabs at Hedjaz routed 11 battalions of Turks 11 miles north of Tafila, killing 400 and capturing 200.

A Barony has been conferred upon Sir John Forrest in recognition of his long and distinguished services to the Empire.

A conference of unions interested in the shipbuilding proposals was held at the Trades Hall last night.

It was decided that the unions should sign the agreement arrived at by the conference in Melbourne.

A further advance in the higher-priced Barrier stocks provided the chief feature in the mining market.

Souths and Norths benefited most, but Hills and Junction Norths also improved in value.

The restriction on the importation of terne plates not manufactured in the United Kingdom has been withdrawn.

Forecast.—Sultry generally, and unsettled inland, with scattered rain and thunderstorms; north-east winds, squally in parts; becoming cooler in the south-west.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

If any reader is a sufferer from this blemish I can cure them. It does not matter how bad the growth is, for I can prove I have removed

FIVE, SIX, SEVEN, AND UP TO

THIRTEEN THOUSAND HAIRS.

These being individual cases, this may seem to many an exaggerated statement, but to women who have tried for possibly six or seven years applications sold as home cures, depilatories, etc., it will be understood. They know that all of these cures have gradually increased the growth from hundreds to thousands, for they remove the tops of the hairs and leave the roots, but I remove what they leave. Of course, my treatment has to be given personally, and the expediency depends upon the lady to be treated and her skin. I will give full details, and a

THE COME-TO-STAY PHOTOGRAPH.
THE COME-TO-STAY PHOTOGRAPH.
THE COME-TO-STAY PHOTOGRAPH.

Our latest creation is the greatest of all Photographs. The New Emblo Portrait has come to stay. It carries all before it, and is better than all the best of the past.

It cannot be approached for ART, STYLE, or EFFECT.

It is chaste in design, harmonious in the blending of complementary tints, and is of distinctive merit. For Black and White Photos. it is a creation in Greys, while for Sepia Portraits it is a unique blending of buffs, creams, and biscuit tints. Each folder is eminently suited for the particular photo. enclosed therein.

It has a two-flap case enclosing a cut-out mount, delicately Indian tinted with dual tints on a plate mark. The photo. shows the mount with good effect. It is flexible, and will not crack or break in carriage.

NOW SEE THE PRICE.
Bromide Portraits (Engraving Black), beautiful and artistic, 15/6 per dozen, or True Sepia Portraits, 21/ per dozen.

This beautiful creation is worthy of the first place in any collection, it instantly appeals to the artistic taste.

The ruling fashion. If you do not see our window before going elsewhere you are sure to be sorry.

A BEAUTIFUL GIFT PICTURE.
The Emblo is an artistic portrait that will give equal pleasure to the one who gives it and to the one who receives it.

THE ON-VIEW PHOTO.
Not like the ordinary photo, that gets stuffed away, the merit of the "Emblo" will impel a permanent view place in the room.

THE CONQUEROR.	1000 HORSES.	WILLIAM FARNUM AT HIS BEST.

POSSESSES THE FOLLOWING 7 CARDINAL VIRTUES WHICH MAKE A SCREEN SUCCESS.

1st. LOVE INTEREST.
In "THE CONQUEROR" we watch with deepest sympathy and delight the determined efforts of Sam Houston to win the love of a fair flower of southern aristocracy and lift himself from a state of barbaric ignorance to a high social plane.

2nd. PUNCH.
Here are just a few of the big wallops in which the picture abounds. The sensational single-handed robbery of the town bank.

Sam Houston's wild ride after the highwayman, the capture and return to camp.

The heroine's struggle in the bridal chamber against the advances of a villainous intruder, and his escape from Houston, the avenging bridegroom.

The battle scenes between the gallant Texans and thousands of Mexican soldiers.

Houston and his Indian friends rescue the heroine and the nuns in the convent attacked by Mexicans.

3rd. ACTION.
Swiftly building and dramatic is the narrative.

4th. SUSPENSE.
Intense action and dramatic surprises. The lovely heroine, a refugee in a convent besieged by a band of savage Mexican guerillas, led by the renegade who, earlier in the story, tried to force his attention upon her.

5th. HUMOUR.
The little touches of humour that make the whole world kin. There is "Jumbo," the faithful fat servant of Sam Houston. Jumbo provides enough entertainment for a whole two-reel comedy in himself.

6th. ATMOSPHERE.
The period in which the story is set is one of the most fascinating in the history of America. The Indian encampment with thousands of real Cherokees; the quaint town of Nashville as it looked in 1830; the American settlements in Texas, and the fine old Colonial home in Tennessee where Houston finds his lady fair.

7th. PATHOS.
The effective intermingling of little incidents that dim the eye with moisture is one of the charms of "THE CONQUEROR." Not the least of these pathetic incidents is provided by the remarkable acting of Sam Houston's "yaller houn' dawg." This canine Thespian gives the most realistic performance of death by poison ever screened.

The Veterinary School, which is well equipped with the most modern appliances and apparatus, is under the direction of Professor J. Douglas Stewart, M.R.C.V.S., B.V.Sc., late Chief Inspector of Stock and Government Veterinary Surgeon of the State of New South Wales.
The Degree granted, i.e., Bachelor of Veterinary Science, is recognised for all public appointments in the Commonwealth. The course of instruction and training is of a progressive nature, and the standard adopted is that of the best Veterinary Colleges in the British Empire. The hospital and clinic in connection with the school offer exceptional facilities for practical training. The fees are six guineas per term, or eighteen guineas per year. Veterinary Science undoubtedly offers a remunerative and congenial profession to those fond of animals, for which a wide field of employment exists. Full particulars of the curriculum will be forwarded on application.

THE CENSOR'S MUSEUM.

OUTWITTING THE ENEMY.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, Dec. 6.

There is in London a house within the walls of which skilled work of the highest war-interest and war-value is carried on almost wholly unsuspected by the public at large. It is a large house in a quiet street. It is sometimes called, vaguely enough, the Censor's Museum, which is, indeed, to describe the whole by description of the part. There is a Censor's Museum in that building, and a most interesting display it makes. But outside the Censor's Museum, in other rooms of this big house, 3000 men and women are at work, and very many of them upon tasks that result in no additional exhibits for that room which is only one of the rooms.

These 3000 people are opening, and reading, passing, or rejecting, swiftly despatching or indefinitely holding, letters and newspapers in transit between neutral countries and between Great Britain and foreign countries. There was a time when the staff numbered no more than 10 persons. That was in the easy-going first months of the war, when the cunning of German correspondence and the range of German propaganda were not understood. But by now it is known that the most innocent seeming postal parcel, addressed to the most unlikely hole or corner of the world, may contain—because it often has contained—inflammably dangerous stuff, or stuff which, if not quite so harmful, is yet of enemy intent. And by now few such things, if any, go undiscovered by the skilled eyes at watch for them here. They are pursued to their remotest hiding places. They are ferreted from their cosiest burrows. The ingenuity of those who despatch forbidden goods and messages, and all the other varieties of prohibited communication, is also more skilled by now than it ever has been. But the searching eyes of these 3000 workers in London, and the gripping stringency of the new blockade, between them are a sufficient protection against whatever cleverness is at work to deceive.

Everything is inspected now, and no addressee is immune. On any day some 40,000 letters and 48,000 newspapers in transit between neutral countries alone come into this place. A party of visitors were shown last week a day's harvest, and we were taken up into the many rooms, floor upon floor, of this great and successful effort against the wiles of a cunning and world-spread enemy.

In the first room we entered dozens of girls were reading newspapers that looked harmlessly neutral, but as a matter of fact might at any moment be persuaded to disclose the carefully hidden hand. As we stood by one table, indeed, we saw something of it. Newspapers lay in legions. Unknown languages and unheard-of localities were on their title-pages. And in the middle of one among the mass, a newspaper from a small town in a small country en route to another small town in another small country, an advertisement not as the other advertisements had been detected. It was an appeal, in German, for subscriptions to the German loan. It destroyed that newspaper's chance of reaching its intended readers. And a folded newspaper addressed to a neutral town, was shown us, and we were asked to run our fingers along it. When we did so we felt something hard within. The little packet was sliced open, and there in the middle of the newspaper was a small nest of business letters addressed to Berlin. But the chief finds of the censor's staff are not advertisements and letters—except those which are obviously important—but goods, hidden in all manner of places, ingeniously disguised, concealed by innumerable devices of skilful packing—quite small goods, of the sample sort, but discovered by the ton. Thousands of bagsful of them have been confiscated here and sold. The censor's museum has its fame by reason of them, for it is there that specimens of these finds are kept on show.

We saw many things, however, before we saw the Censor's Museum. There was the distributing room, where all the letters come, with its careful check and record of letters questioned and stopped, and its aggregate mass of letters passing through hundreds of hands. There were the registered letters and the trade letters and the private letters of various categories—letters, for that matter, going to Germany—freely passing if they are innocent. As to that, we asked the chance of cyphers and cryptograms, and were told that what is not known just there of cyphers and cryptograms does not matter much. The aggregate capacity of the staff is, in truth, astonishing. Roomsful of girls read masses of letters in German, French, Dutch, Russian, Portuguese—all the languages of Europe. There is a room occupied by foreign-looking men of all types, who, between them, wrestle with no fewer than 157 languages and dialects—all the far-off, unfamiliar tongues of the world, every one of which sooner or later may come to be read here; and the trade letter-room is filled by experts in all the known crafts, able to read most of the known languages. The variety of language-accomplishment gathered together is, thus, one of the most impressive features of the place, and the amount of work to be done is suggested by the fact that in a single year 40,000,000 letters have been examined by this staff.

The library and the Censor's Museum are, however, the centres of an interest as great as any. The library is quite wonderful. It consists of specimen German books, pamphlets, periodicals, newspapers, etc., which are kept as records of the tens of thousands of such publications that have been detained in transit. The glimpse they give of the bulk and range of German propaganda is profoundly impressive. They are printed in many tongues. They were distributed in enormous quantities in many countries. They handled the case for Germany in a bewildering variety of argument and appeal for readers of all nations and all tastes. Very much of this treasure was garnered from enemy mails to America, when America was a neutral, but it covers all countries and their populations, from China to Peru, in every one of which Germany strove for readers, employing a gigantic system of publicity for the single end of interesting and attaching them. It is claimed for this library that it is the most representative collection extant of enemy propaganda. One can well believe it. By comparison with its revelation of Germany's vast use of the written word as an influence upon the minds of men, our own propaganda, at all events, has a long leeway to make up.

All the arguments for Germany's case are here seen to be stated in all manner of forms, from that of the picture postcard to that of ponderous tomes. The leaders of the German army, and navy, and every other leader of thought or of action are eulogised, when they are not almost worshipped, in a hundred-and-one volumes; many of them beautifully printed, many of them illustrated to the last elaboration of artistic attractiveness. Some of this mighty mass of propaganda is plain-spoken definite attack on the Allies: other of it, compiled for a different stratum of readers, is cleverly subtle pamphleteering. Some of it is written by the greatest German publicists, and a whole literature of it, always in the language of the people concerned, has been moving among and influencing, who knows how deeply, German-Americans and every other section of United States aliens, Scandinavians, Dutch, South American-Spanish, and so on to infinity. There are 16 books of eulogistic biography of Hindenburg alone, and eight of Mackensen. There are descriptive works on the German army, the German navy, the German air-service—all mighty in their praise. Thousands of books of all sorts seem to have been circulated in Russia and Poland. Cunning devices abound. They were intended to beguile the postal censor. They have failed of their intention. There are books here, in English, appealing to Indian disaffection, which bear the names of London publishers who do not exist in London. There are books of dangerous intent which are bound in harmless covers, as, for instance, those which are quite other than their titles would suggest, those actually harmless save for their deftly interleaved propaganda, and, also, the issues of a well-known German magazine which is dated 1903 to make its contents seem to be old matter, but is really a publication of last year crammed with recent war-interest. There is, moreover, a vast accumulation of religious propaganda which, begun by German Jesuits, has been continued in an enormous literature written by persons of every shade of religious opinion for their co-religionists in every country. Specimens of all these things, and of many others, were before us in the censor's library. They were an overwhelming revelation of the fact that German publicity methods, colossal in energy, in ability, and in unscrupulousness, have flooded the world with the case for Germany.

REJECTED VOLUNTEERS.

At the last meeting of the committee of the Rejected Volunteers' Association it was decided that the members, who now number upwards of 2500, should be circularised regarding the establishment of a club. It was reported that Mr. Arthur Rickard, vice-president, had given over £200 worth of land on the Blue Mountains, on which it is proposed to erect six homes for war widows, the members of the association having contributed to a fund established for that purpose.

'A' WOMAN'S LETTER.

The King and the Queen.

LONDON, W., Nov. 21.

The King and Queen remain at Buckingham Palace busier than ever with their work for the commonweal. All industries are receiving personal attention from them both. The King has twice visited the London docks and has examined with keen interest the manner in which merchandise has been stored. He went over the granaries and amused those who were in attendance by refusing to don a white overall to save his naval uniform being covered with flour. King George went through laughingly and cheered many a worker by the spirit with which he went through every detail. The Queen has been a great deal with children in hospitals during the week. She has sent quantities of toys to the little ones suffering from shell shock and other injuries caused by the raids. It seems toys are the best cure for the shell shock case.

Preparing for an Air Raid.

We are now into the first quarter of the moon with finer weather, and people already begin to prophesy concerning the possibilities of air raids next week. It is curious how soon the majority of people forget raids. Once over, they think no more about them. Others brood and contemplate what may happen when the moon is at the full, and so never get over the nervous dread of further air troubles. We plan all manner of comforts for raid nights, and a regular system in my own home is being arranged. On the first note of warning we open all the windows. Then the kitchen fire is well made up, gas is turned out, and we creep about with candles or electric torches. When the lights are down one can pull up blinds, and those, like myself, who want to see all that is going on may watch the progress of the fight in the air until the barrage gets so near that this is unsafe. Then one goes into the basement and sits round the kitchen fire. If the firing gets very near the scream and whistle of shells is heard and we wait with what patience and courage we can muster hoping the firing will soon draw away to some other quarter. Then comes a lull and one leaves the dug out, only to return because a fresh attack commences. And so it may go on for three or four hours. We sip hot drinks, especially one concocted with essence of ginger, sal volatile, and peppermint, which warms one. The trouble about raids is that the stress and excitement makes one shiver with cold. When "all clear" is bugled through the streets we betake ourselves to bed with hot bottles and try and steal some slumber before morning. This sort of life tells heavily upon people at work during the day.

Clothes.

In clothes I have nothing amazingly new to chronicle. So many women and girls are at work in garments which have to be of the most sensible nature that, save for a visit on Sundays, there is little necessity for smart dressing. Women are at one as regards the need of fur coats and an amplitude of fur wraps. Where so many expensive coats come from is a mystery. The skirts are so short that nothing shows beneath the edge of the coat. It is said to be an economy, and that any old thing does under these regal looking coats. Certain it is that these coats and their kindred in fur trimmed cloths make a thin dress possible, and thus one sees many smart one-piece frocks of taffetas trimmed with some fur and embroidery when the coat is opened a little. There is a great chance now for designers of pretty one-piece gowns. Not necessarily coat frocks; they obtain, too, but they are more severe in line and make than the little butterfly style of thin frock which smart women delight in under their coats. A great deal of bead embroidery is done for these shimmering gowns. Though with the danger to Venice at this moment, it is difficult to say where our next stock of beads is to come from.

Ribbons are interdict. And yet the counters are running over with them. Trade in war-time is a mystery to me. And yet, never were ribbons so much used as now. The narrow hat ribbons are dreams of beauty. Brocaded in shades of roses and leaves with metal interwoven edges and again gold brocade in the centres. They are wonderfully beautiful, and the colours have been done by artistic designers.

The changes are rung in these dainty dresses by means of half-skirts of taffetas, of soft satin joined on to ninon or georgette bodices with bretelles, and full-fashioned blouses coming from underneath all as soft and dainty as the needlewoman's hand can make them. These are the gowns seen at smart tea places, where the man home on leave takes his best girl out to beguile an hour or so after a matinee. The hats are high-crowned, and mostly black velvet or hatters' plush, but the brims are lined with shell pink, the palest of blues, grey, or white. Very dainty do the girls look, and small wonder, if after the turmoil, noise, smoke, smell, and destruction the tired eyes like to rest on so pretty a picture, and long to possess something so delicate and removed from the din of battle. The streets are per contra full of stalwart girls in uniform. I travelled the other day with a girl in the Army Service Corps, a driver I should say. She wore a khaki overcoat, with deep opossum collar and cuffs, stout driving gloves, and a service hat. Girls in the blue of the Red Cross, girls as policemen, girls everywhere in some sort of uniform. All busy and self-possessed. For them uniform is the only wear; you meet them thus on opera nights, listening as I did to the fascinating music of Samson and Delilah—in the stalls of theatres nothing but uniform.

Office women allow themselves a little more latitude, but it only extends to the blouse. The coat and skirt, with perhaps on a cold day a well-cut blue overcoat and a neat hat tied with a pretty ribbon, voila tout. Even the blouse has to be cut simply, as it is not good form to wear anything too smart in an office. It is done by some girls, but mostly by the flapper just emancipated from school, with the sense of earned money which in her young way makes her a little careless of cost. She is wonderful though, and takes on quite uninteresting jobs so as to be in the movement.

And yet, when you walk down some of the fashionable streets and see the costly clothes exposed for sale you say to yourself: "Is this war time?" There are furs of the most expensive genre, delicate brocades, gold and silver tissues, lace, silk, and other delicate fabrics; and embroidery in fine silks, as well as in coarse Berlin wools. You never know to what direction the designer will go. Some of the tunic jumpers look well embroidered on the chest and near the hem in barbaric colourings, and a fringe of heavy balls would complete the style well.

MAKATANA TO MOUNT HOPE.

The construction of the spur line of railway from Makatana to Mount Hope, a distance of 10 miles, is to be proceeded with immediately. Mount Hope is situated in a splendid wheat growing and fruit growing centre. Bound up with the prosperity of the district is the Mount Hope copper mine. When the present company took over the property only 14 hands were employed, and the entire population numbered not more than 30 or 40 souls. In anticipation of larger operations of the mine, the population has already grown to 700. When as the result of the completion of the railway the mine is opened up to its full capacity, it will employ 500 hands. It is expected that the railway will be completed before the end of June.

DEATH OF MRS. GEORGE RANKEN.

There passed away recently at her residence, Bayswater-road, Darlinghurst, Mrs. George Ranken, a member of an old Scottish family, who had spent 60 years in Australia. She had travelled extensively, and was intimately acquainted with the history of the country, being one of the oldest members of the Australian Historical Society, which benefited much by her gifts of books, pamphlets, and other articles of interest. For many years she was prominently connected with the Women's Club, and other associations of an educational character.

FODDER TREES.

(BY SYDNEY JEPHCOTT.)

According to the Press, the State Government is, at long last, about to make a beginning in the encouragement of growing fodder trees—a matter the importance of which seems to me impossible to exaggerate.

The ordinary grazier can, I know, increase the permanent value of his property one quarter by a reasonable, practicable scheme of planting fodder trees—in fact, I am equally sure that an estimate of one-third would be nearer the real fact. But the first essential of such a successful plantation is to find the right kind of trees. And in doing so I would advise the intending planter to get hold of the list of fodder trees which the Government proposes to distribute, and, with one exception, stand right off the whole list—kurrajong, casuarinas, carob-bean, tree lucerne, saltbush. Kurrajong alone of this list is worth a moment's consideration by a practical man. In the zone between a 30 and a 15 inch rainfall kurrajong can be made of the first value on any well-drained country, which is not too cold (Monaro, e.g.). But never forget that under ordinary conditions of its existence kurrajong is so slow in growth that it has little practical value—except when it occurs indigenously. You may plant kurrajong in ordinary circumstances, and in 30 years it will not be big enough to keep a sheep in fodder for three weeks. That is no good to the grazier. But I have seen kurrajong seedlings cultivated like an up-to-date fruit orchard, and in two years from the seed they were twice as big as any 30-year-old natural specimens I ever saw. At two years old the branches would have met in a 25ft plantation. In other words, planted at 70 to the acre they would have provided a solid covering of fodder, averaging 10 feet through, over the whole planted surface. That should mean some fodder reserves? If our Agricultural Department would only put some of its wheat demonstration farms under kurrajong, and properly cultivate them for, say, five years, it would have some big assets. But in the meantime let me urge some of our mixed farmers to put in plantations of kurrajong and treat them—except in the matter of pruning—precisely like a fruit orchard, and great will be their reward. Planted at 30 to 35 feet apart, such a plantation should be worth £200 per acre to its fortunate owner in five years. As a provision against droughts—real ironclad droughts especially—such a kurrajong plantation should be as valuable as an equal area of irrigated lucerne; with the enormous advantage of being available over millions of acres where irrigation is for ever out of the question. But the man who plants kurrajong and does not cultivate is only looking for a 1 per cent. investment instead of a 1000 per cent.

Casuarinas I have never seen cultivated; and those which I have watched under natural conditions are even slower of growth than kurrajong. When one considers the very low nutritive content of casuarina foliage, it seems certain that one could import oats or other feed grains from the remotest parts of the earth with more profit than he could plant casuarinas. At the same time, any natural growths of at least the sheoak should receive the most jealous care.

The carob can only be considered for its yield of beans. I have seen stock dying of hunger still refuse even to look at carob leaves. And, of course, carob-beans would have to be gathered and stored against a time of need, just like grain; but, I think, with a much greater proportionate expense. Still the tree is so hardy and such a magnificent shelter, and the beans and pods so concentratedly nutritious, that a certain cultivation, especially along fences as wind-breaks, can be unreservedly recommended. The fact that cattle and horses will not touch its foliage makes its cultivation very much easier. It must not be overlooked, however, that the carob is uni-sexual, and both male and female trees must be planted—in a ratio of about 10 females to one male.

Salt-bush is not a tree, and cannot be made the subject of a fodder-tree plantation; it is essentially a fodder-plant—and there is very great need for exhaustive experiments being carried out to determine the real value of salt-bush paddocks against rival fodder-plants. What we know of the past history of the species of the plant leads one to believe that information of the greatest ultimate value would be elicited. But to include it, as the Government list does, among fodder-trees, is to confuse the whole issue. It seems to me that the basic idea of the plantation of fodder-trees is to have a mass of fodder reserves that (after the inevitable period of infancy) will not only look after themselves, but, as a side issue, supply most valuable shade and shelter to stock.

When stock are absolutely starving they may eat tree-lucerne foliage, but so they will almost any other leaves you may offer them, even though rankly poisonous. In my own plantation, during the last great drought, the starving cattle ate poisonous yew and laurel, bunya, cedar, and pine branches, in preference to tree-lucerne, which is the greatest imposition ever foisted on an ignorant public, being neither a tree, a lucerne, nor a fodder-plant at all.

But to come to some practical recommendations for really useful plantations of fodder trees. Wherever a good rainfall is the rule and drought the exception—say east of Wagga—there is no tree that can come into any practical competition with the weeping willow, where either stagnant or running water exists during a portion of the year, more particularly, but also wherever sufficient underground moisture is present to grow European trees. Thus, in addition to the great areas of "bottom land" which are a feature of our valley systems, and much of which by its swampiness is only for very short periods of any real grazing value, but where the willow finds its most congenial home, there are also great areas of upland country wherein this tree can be grown to almost equal advantage, as along all kinds of watercourses right up to the summits of densely wooded mountains, and wherever damp hill-slopes exist. An especial virtue of the willow is its aptitude to dry up those bogs and springy places which for every 5s worth of green feed given in dry times cost us £5 by their dissemination of fluke and worms. Another especial virtue is that the willow will flourish in those ever-spreading patches of bracken which are swallowing so many hundreds of thousands of acres of our hill-country, and will gradually destroy that curse, while providing not only a sure reserve of fodder against droughts, but also at all times a supply of browsing more than equal to what natural herbage could grow on the space it occupies. In short a complete issue of this paper could be filled with the eulogy of the weeping willow; which indeed, only has two faults—that it will not grow on dry as well as it grows on damp land, and that it is not evergreen—though its period of leaflessness is shorter than that of any other deciduous tree.

Elms are also a good fodder tree; and will grow in somewhat drier soil than the willow—though not so very much drier—and are well worthy of some attention, although I am inclined to believe that as soon as we leave the willow the white poplar, or abele is the next best fodder tree we can cultivate in similar climates. The abele is a rampageous grower, will look after its own propagation, with half a chance, and all stock seem to relish and thrive on its heavy foliage. Among broken, rocky country if there is any moisture at all among the rocks, it will thrive and spread indefinitely with no care at all.

For drier country, particularly sandhills, out as far as Narrandera and Hillston to my knowledge, and most likely still farther, the common "acacia" (Robinia pseudo-acacia) seems to be the most promising of the commoner introduced trees. If such sandhills were fenced off and "acacia" suckers—everywhere procurable—were planted at, say, the rate of even a dozen to an acre, in a few years other suckers therefrom would be found to have sprung up all over the planted ground. This tree has also the characteristic of gradually shedding its leaves all through any dry summer and autumn; thus largely doing away with the necessity of lopping. Anyone planting "acacia" has also the further satisfaction of knowing that he is raising a store of one of the best timbers in the world—tough, dense, durable, and fit for any purpose from fencing to furniture—and especially good for carriage building.

To recapitulate: The grazier who has any country suitable for willows need not worry about anything else; but would make no mistake if he were to put in a small kurrajong plantation as well to tide him over the few months during which willows are bare. And on the same class of country the white poplar is well worthy of consideration; and is capable of extension into drier situations than are quite congenial to the willow. In drier districts, off the watercourses, where no swampy, boggy, or moist soil is available, kurrajong should be regarded as the sheet-anchor; but always with due regard for the fact that one cultivated kurrajong will in a very few years produce more fodder than a hundred uncultivated ones. And over very large areas it can very easily be supplemented by rough and ready plantations of the common "acacia." My own opinion of the importance of the whole subject I can best indicate by stating my unequivocal belief that as far as the real wealth and security of the country is concerned all the land, time, labour, and money spent upon the culture of fruit trees in Australia would have been 500 per cent. more profitably employed in the development of plantations of fodder trees.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

RECONSTRUCTION AFTER THE WAR.

The question which, next to the prosecution of the war itself, is interesting Britain most keenly just now is that of reconstruction after the war. The amiable commonplace that nothing will be the same after the war is meaningless unless it means that the community, by an intelligent anticipation of the problems that peace will bring, is able so to organise society that each member will enjoy a wider opportunity and greater justice than has hitherto been possible in our somewhat chaotic civilisation. Quite a number of books have recently appeared dealing with such matters as the future relations of capital and labour, the land, repatriation, and similar industrial and economic subjects. The most ambitious of these is "The Making of the Future" (Williams and Norgate), a series of studies in reconstruction edited by Mr. V. Branford and Professor Patrick Geddes. The first volume, "The Coming Polity," written by the editors, is an examination of the French theory of "Regionalism," applied to British conditions. The authors point out that in a primitive society man's destiny is shaped by the geographical factor. The place where he lives largely determines his character, his occupation, his attitude towards life, and though the complexities of civilisation have modified the rule it still holds in a broad sense. Obviously a civilisation that co-operates with natural law will have better results than one that ignores it, and the authors believe that an intelligent application of the principles of "regionalism" is to be our social panacea. Their doctrine should not be confused with the ordinary "back to the land" crusade. That is excellent as far as it goes, but it does not go very far. Industry has come to stay; a great proportion of the population will always live in towns. But the authors are convinced that much more can be done than is being done to minimise the evils of urbanisation. In the same series "Ideas at War," by Professor Geddes and Dr. Gilbert Slater, approaches the subject from a somewhat different angle. This is a plea for education. Here, again, the term is used with its widest meaning. A man with a string of letters after his name may be uneducated in the authors' sense, while the village cobbler may have what the Master of Arts lacks. Education is neither book-learning nor practical proficiency. It is the discipline which makes a man receptive to new ideas. For instance, a British colonel told the authors that if his "officers, non-coms., and men knew even the cardinal points of the compass it would save ten per cent. of them." They were "all of the average in intelligence and education, but they could not grasp the very simple idea of map reading." It does not matter much what a man learns; education is an exercise to make the mind agile and elastic. The whole object of learning anything is, in fact, to teach you to learn something else. In "An Imperial Obligation" (Grant Richards) Mr. T. H. Mawson applies the theory of regionalism to the immediate problem of repatriation. Mr. Mawson foresees the return of hundreds of thousands of fighting men who will not be equal to the strain of ordinary industrial life, but will be both able and eager to do useful work in a hundred occupations. Their opportunity will lie largely in "home" industries, and yet the very nature of home industries in their present condition is a handicap. If they are scientifically grouped everyone will be the more prosperous. For instance, there is little profit in setting up a returned soldier as a market gardener with poor communication miles away from a town, or as a toymaker far from the haunts of toy users. Mr. Mawson dreams of a community in which the cities will be encircled with little villages, inhabited by ex-soldiers, who furnish it with its needs. Each village will be strategically situated on a railway or a canal, or will be provided for with an adequate motor service. These villages will not only supply foodstuffs and the like, but will also supplement the industrial activities of the town. There are many branches of manufacture which still depend in various shapes on work done by little scattered home industries, which turn wood on their private lathes or make up leather or perform a thousand and one inconspicuous and scarcely recognised industrial services. Mr. Mawson believes that in their systematisation and co-ordination close to their market lies an almost unexplored field. He dislikes the word "organisation," because that has now come to have a hard official significance; but he believes that the plan which he suggests will not only save waste, but will redeem from hopelessness and poverty many a man who has bled for his country, and now asks nothing better than to work for it. That Mr. Mawson is no idealistic visionary is shown by the fact that he has been asked by M. Venizelos to replan Salonica, not long ago almost reduced to ashes, and that Sir Douglas Haig has written a very sympathetic foreword to his book.

Mr. Dampier Whetham, in "The War and the Nation" (Murray: Angus and Robertson), declares that his point of view is conservative, and proceeds to distinguish between enlightened Conservatism and stubborn Toryism. The Conservative aims at preserving what is best in the past until he is convinced that the new substitute is better still. His Conservatism does not prevent him from being constructive; indeed, it compels him to be so if he is to have any influence at all. Hence, while Mr. Whetham's bent of mind inclines him to the idea that in the feudal theory may be found the solution for many British problems, present and future, his conception of feudalism differs widely from the popular one, and is broader than even the scientific one. His feudalism is not simply a hierarchy of corresponding protection and service associated with the tenure of land. It is that the ownership of any kind of property whatever involves obligations as well as rights. This principle may be most obvious in regard to land, but it applies equally to industry and commerce in all their forms, even to those somewhat intangible relations which the complexities of modern business have produced. In consonance with his feudal theory the Crown (i.e., the State) is at the apex of the pyramid. Mr. Whetham, though a Conservative, is quite reconciled to see the State playing a larger part in social organisation than it did before the war. In non-essential industries it will perhaps content itself with the exercise of its authority to ensure that both labour and capital receive a fair return for their respective services—the function of an Australian Arbitration Court, in fact. In essential industries it may go further, and insist upon actual control, or, at any rate, supervision. Mr. Whetham's book is thoughtful and suggestive, and shows that the whirligig of time brings strange revenges. The avowed Conservatism of 1918 goes farther than the wilder doctrinaire dreamer of a generation ago.

The foregoing books deal chiefly with general principles; "Our Future," by "Clarity" (Thomas Murby), is concerned with the practical application of the lessons of recent experience. The author believes that the future "demands a complete revision of the methods of the British business man, the keynote of which must be entire abandonment of precedent and convention. If we wish to enjoy commercial supremacy we will have to regard the country as one, and not a series of units. It is the business as well as the interest of manufacturers to take a very large and liberal view of their relations with labour, and associations of manufacturers should be in close touch with unions of workers." The author discusses various industries, and indicates how, in his opinion, greater efficiency can be achieved. Almost the only "precedent" which he wishes to retain is that of British business integrity. Yet this patriotic iconoclast would probably have described himself as a "Conservative" a few years ago. Truly times change.

VISCOUNT MORLEY'S REMINISCENCES.

His retirement from public life has given Viscount Morley of Blackburn leisure to set down his memories of a crowded and active career. He has published them in two stout volumes of "Recollections," which have a double interest. They not only contain the autobiography of one who has figured largely in the events of his time, but they give an extraordinarily intimate picture of the whole intellectual outlook of Britain during the middle and later Victorian period, with all its breadth and all its limitations. The autobiographical element, indeed, is subordinated to the impressions of men and movements.

Viscount Morley was born in 1838; went to Oxford when this ancient city was in a ferment with new ideas, carried his idealism to London, became a successful journalist and litterateur, entered Parliament in 1886 as a member for a northern shipping and industrial constituency and became a steadily increasing force in Liberal councils. He was appointed Chief Secretary for Ireland, and, to use his own term, made his name "a word of singular abhorrence" because he was suspected of an intention of disciplining Ulster. Rumour, as is her way in Ireland as elsewhere, interpreted the alleged intention in the usual bloodthirsty sectarian extravagance which is almost comical when we remember the character of Viscount Morley and the ideals of the Government he represented. Later, when after a lengthy sojourn in the wilderness his party returned to power, he was regarded as the obvious man to tackle difficult and delicate problems and became Secretary of State for India. His work in this capacity has been enthusiastically praised and bitterly criticised. No doubt it was made none the easier by the unfortunate differences in policy of Kitchener and Lord Curzon and in any case it is too soon to pass any judgment, let alone a final judgment. The same problem still confronts those charged with the administration of India; they have to reconcile the theories of the native intelligensia who would like to govern India with a well-kept ledger with those of the more aggressive Indian races whose principle of democracy is a well-oiled rifle.

There will be many to whom the most interesting part of these "Recollections" is not that which deals with his public life, but that in which he surveys the intellectual influences of his day and environment. The political Liberalism of his school is a trifle obsolete; it may be heresy to say so, but it strikes the modern Liberal as rather too complacent and self sufficient, and perhaps, a little too ready to believe what it wants to believe. But Viscount Morley's Parliamentary activities were only a part of his career as a practical man of affairs. His was a wide and generous horizon. At Oxford he was a disciple of men who had their foibles and crotchets but were pioneers in the invidious task of redeeming their University and later their country from a certain stodginess and narrowness which we associate with the mid-Victorian period. In London, where he edited several important journals, he was the intimate of all the fixed stars of literature and of many of the planets who were later to attain to the dignity of fixed stars. Carlyle, Matthew Arnold, John Stuart Mill, Meredith, Pater, Swinburne, Rossetti—he knew them all and often gives a picture of them which differs widely from popular impression. When he was asked to edit the "English Men of Letters" series, in some ways his greatest literary achievement, he knew exactly where to find the best critical opinion, and in only one or two cases did his judgment prove to be at fault. The chapters on "The Spirit of the Time," "Foreign Influences," and "Leading Contemporaries," are almost a book in themselves, with their luminous survey of the currents of thought which have in 50 years changed Britain so quietly but so profoundly. (Macmillan.)

CHRISTINE.

There is no need for Mrs. Alice Cholmondeley to assure us in the foreword to "Christine" that the letters from her daughter reprinted therein are genuine. That is evident in every line. They are letters written by a high spirited, observant girl, with a keen sense of humour, who went to Berlin early in 1914 to study music. Miss Cholmondeley was a delightful correspondent. Towards the end a note of tragedy creeps in, but the earlier letters, despite an occasional touch of homesickness, are light-hearted and cheerful and extremely entertaining. She is keenly interested in her surroundings, her work, and her fellow guests at the pension. Sometimes she has to laugh at these, sometimes she is irritated by their manners or their aggressiveness, or their patronising airs. She is constantly made to feel that she, as a woman and a non-German to boot, is a very inferior order of being. But on the whole she found most of them endurable, and many of them kindly enough. Some she liked extremely; Kloster, for instance, her old teacher, a social democrat, who delivers himself of opinions that, if heard by the police, would ensure his conviction for lese majeste, and a young officer, who though a Prussian and a Junker, hates militarism, and lives only for music. She becomes engaged to him later, but war cuts short their romance. To her the war comes like a bolt from the blue. She knew, of course, about the Sarajevo assassination, and was conscious of the feeling of suspense around her. Some of her acquaintances, female as well as male, prophesied war with blood-thirsty exultation, but she did not take them very seriously, and it did not occur to her that Britain might be involved. But gradually the international horizon became darker; black looks greeted the "hateful Englishwoman," who had previously been so popular, and so flattered as the prospective wife of an officer. Even Kloster failed her, Kloster, the Social Democrat, who, with several others of his political views were, on the outbreak of war, converted into staunch supporters of the dynasty by the timely gift of an order, and the title of "excellency." That Kloster could thus be bought hurt her as much as anything. Her sentiments towards her fiance, and his towards her had not changed but marriage was now out of the question. She left for England, passing herself off as an American, but contracted pneumonia before she was out of Germany and died in a German hospital.

Her comments on the German people and their state of mind just before the war are shrewd and interesting. Like so many, she expected Germany to conform to the old tradition of a placid sentimental music-loving folk. Certainly she did see evidence of this every holiday in every beer garden and park. But it was a German who told her that this impression was superficial; these easy-going bourgeois family groups were as clay in the hands of the Government. So, too, she noticed that the most amiable people were apt to express the most callous and unmoral sentiments when it was a question of Germany's place in the world. She learned to draw a distinction between the individual German and the nation. "The German point of view," of which she heard a good deal on analysis, proved simply to be that "wrong becomes right directly it has anything to do with Germans. Not with a German. The individual German can, and does, commit every sort of wrong, just as other individuals do in other countries, and he gets punished for them with tremendous harshness. But directly he is in the plural, and becomes 'we Germans,' as they are for ever saying, his crimes become virtues. As a body he purifies; he has a purging quality." (Macmillan.)

NEW FICTION.

The dramatisation of a successful novel is no new idea. Of late years the process has been reversed, and the successful play is turned into a novel for the benefit of those who have not seen it on the stage. The newest example is "Turn to the Right," in which Mr. Bennet Musson has woven into a consecutive narrative a play which Australian audiences have recently enjoyed. The basis of the book is clearly the parts put into each actor's hand, and the directions to the stage manager and the scene painter. Whole chapters are dialogues culled in extenso from the play, and the interstices are filled with appropriate description and comment. But it is all very dexterously done. "Turn to the Right" reminds us also of a certain utilitarian element in American ethic, as interpreted by many writers. Honesty is not only the best policy, but the most lucrative one in the long run; virtue may be its own reward; it is by no means its only reward. This is no doubt a temporary phase in a certain class of American letters. But it is hardly a just expression of the fine idealism that has animated American democracy in the most important affairs of life, and has ever and anon confounded those who talk of American materialism. (Duffield.)

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Miss Florence Gleeson, who passed away during the week in Melbourne, where her last appearance was as the doctor's wife in "Dot" during the Marie Tempest season, was a brilliant character actress, for whom parts especially suited to her individual talents were only found at longish intervals. Quite early in her career Miss Gleeson made a hit as the irrepressibly vulgar "Tweeny" in J. M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton," with Cuyler Hastings in the name-part. This was in 1904, and a few months later she electrified Sydney audiences with the same company in "The Light that Failed." As Bessie Broke, the gutter-snipe model, who fell in love with Dick Heldar (Cuyler Hastings), Miss Gleeson's scared looks in the earlier scenes, and her stunning, seductive sweetness after the manner of a Seven Dials Delilah in the later love passages, were wonderfully true to nature. There was a touch of genius in all this, because off the stage the young artist was a girl of much refinement and reticence. In 1908 Miss Gleeson supported Charles Waldron and Ola Humphrey in "The Squaw Man" as Nat-u-Rich, an almost wordless part, which she invested with interest, and in 1911 she replaced Katherine Grey in "Paid in Full" both in Adelaide and Perth. A holiday in England, and a charming impersonation of the telephone girl in "The Woman" (Hilda Spong) in 1912, formed the outstanding features in a career unusually crowded with the disappointments which so often mar the life of an ambitious woman who sincerely devotes herself to her art.

Mr. Hugh J. Ward has advised the J. C. Williamson direction that he will leave New York for San Francisco almost at once, reaching Sydney near Easter. The actor-manager, who has been lavishly entertained by the Lambs and the Friars, the great theatrical clubs of the city, remarks that the New York season has involved a crop of failures, indirectly due to disturbed conditions arising from the war, and it is generally believed that America will shortly find herself still more within the storm zone. Mr. Ward has re-engaged Mr. George Highland, who, after producing "The Pink Lady" in this city, returned to New York for one of Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger's theatres. Mr. Highland has now been released once more in order to stage here the musical comedy "Oh, Oh, Delphine." Other musical pieces secured are "Maytime," "Going Up," which was originally a comedy known as "The Aviator," "Oh Boy," a musical piece by James Kearn, which is having an immense run at the Princess Theatre (N.Y.), "The High Cost of Living," a musical farce; "What Next?" by the authors of "So Long Letty," staged by Oliver Morosco at Los Angeles late last year, and "Katinka," by the composers of "High Jinks." Mr. Ward's official list of dramatic purchases up to December includes several already mentioned in these columns, and many that are new, as follows:—"A Scrap of Paper," a new play, the scenes of which are laid in New York, and not to be confused with Sardou's old-time comedy with the same (English) title; the farce "Parlour, Bedroom, and Bath;" "Business Before Pleasure," by the authors of "Potash and Perlmutter"; the comedy "The Tailor-made Man"; comedy "Johnny Get Your Gun"; "The Cinderella Man," romantic play; "Nothing But the Truth," farce; "Captain Kidd Junior," by Rida Johnson Young, whose libretto ensures the success of "Maytime"; and "The Man Who Came Back," a drama now well advanced in its first run.

Guy Bates Post, the actor engaged by Messrs. J. and N. Tait for an Australian season in the comedy-drama "The Masquerader," is expected to open here early in April. Mr. Post, who is about 40 years of age, must be recognised as an American actor of eminence. He was, for example, leading man with Mrs. Fiske in "Leah Kleschna," "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," and "Hedda Gabbler" seven or eight years ago, and has since appeared at the Majestic, New York, in the leading role in "The Bridge," and at the New and other theatres in that city. In his early days Mr. Post had a sound training in classic drama, as, after finishing his law studies at Seattle, he started his stage career in 1893 in "Romeo and Juliet," "She Stoops to Conquer," and other pieces, with Kyrle Bellew and Mrs. Potter. Subsequently for some years he played seconds to various stars in Shakespeare, and his reputation is that of a soundly accomplished artist. Lately he has become famous in a dual role in "The Masquerader," a comedy-drama staged in England by George Alexander under the title of "John Chilcote, M.P." Mr. Post will appear only in this city and in Melbourne, as he is booked for the opening of the autumn season in New York.

"Isabeau," Pietro Mascagni's new work, recently produced by the Chicago Opera Company, appears to have missed a success which it might have attained had the music been inspired by Luigi Illica's strongly contrived libretto. The plot closely follows the story of Lady Godiva. Isabeau, rejecting every suitor, enrages her father, King Raimondo, who wishes by her marriage to perpetuate the dynasty. During the famous ride the townspeople remain faithfully indoors, with the exception of young Folco, a poet, dreamer, and idealist, who rushes forth, pelts the nude princess with flowers, and curses the perpetrators of the outrage. Condemned to the extreme penalty, Folco merely exclaims: "I am ready to die." Isabeau accepts the whole incident from the poet's standpoint, and for the first time falls in love. They pledge eternal devotion as he is led to execution; and the curtain falls. The opera was splendidly sung and acted by Rosa Raisa (name-part), Giulio Crimi (Folco), and Giacomo Rimini in the baritone role of the king. The work was beautifully staged under Mr. Campanini's general management.

"The Easiest Way," a social drama on Zolaesque lines, has replaced the romantic Hawaiian play, "The Bird of Paradise," at the Melbourne Theatre Royal during the past week. The new piece afforded the emotional opportunities which show Muriel Starr at her best, though the central character itself, that of a shallow, excitable woman, is described as on a low and sordid level. Briefly put, the story of Laura Murdock is that of a young actress, who places herself under the protection of a theatrical capitalist in order to advance herself on the stage. Then she falls in love with a journalist (Louis Kimball), who goes to Colorado to prepare a home for her on their marriage; and in the meantime she once more falls into the hands of her former patron (Frank Harvey). An interesting debut was made by Norma Mitchell, a cousin of Miss Starr, who accompanied the latter from Los Angeles. The veteran comedienne, Maggie Moore, caused much laughter in the role of a creole domestic. "The Easiest Way" is by Eugene Walter, an American dramatist, whose only other play produced on this side was "Paid in Full," in which Katherine Grey appeared seven years ago.

Mme. Eleanora de Cisneros, after a considerable interval of silence, has posted a card from New York city, bearing the words, "May your heart's desire be realised in the New Year," and some of her friends here accept it as a happy augury for another visit to Australia. This great artist's impersonations of Dalila and Carmen will never be forgotten here; but unless Mme. Melba should organise a second opera company it is unlikely that the famous mezzo will be seen here again.

Mme. Elsa Stralia has been making successful appearances with the Beecham Opera Company at Drury Lane. Mr. William Moses, whose son she married, forwards from Lawson copies of the most eulogistic notices by the London Press upon her singing of the dramatic role of Aida, adding that the brilliant Australian soprano has also completed a tour of 30 concerts in England with Mme. Clara Butt.

Grigor Cherniavsky, a violinist belonging to the group which includes Leo, Jan, Michel, and Alexander, has reached Portland (Oregon), after a strenuous journey across Siberia and the Pacific. This artist fought in the battle of Lemberg.

THE BOROUGH TREASURER.

CHAPTER IX.—Continued.

He sat down as the housekeeper left the witness-box—confident that he had succeeded in introducing a new atmosphere into the case. Already there were whisperings going on in the crowded court, he felt that these country folk, always quick to form suspicions, were beginning to ask themselves if there was not something dark and sinister behind the mystery of Kitely's murder, and he was callous enough—from a purely professional standpoint—to care nothing if they began to form ideas about Miss Pett. For Brereton knew that nothing is so useful in the breaking-down of one prejudice as to set up another, and his great object just then was to divert primary prejudice away from his client. Nevertheless, nothing, he knew well, could at that stage prevent Harborough's ultimate committal—unless Harborough himself chose to prove the alibi of which he had boasted. But Harborough refused to do anything towards that, and when the case had been adjourned for a week and the prisoner removed to a cell pending his removal to Norcaster gaol, a visit from Brereton and Avice in company failed to move him.

"It's no good, my girl; it's no good, sir," he said, when both had pleaded with him to speak. "I'm determined! I shall not say where I was last night."

"Tell me—in secret—and then leave me to make use of the knowledge, also in secret," urged Brereton.

"No, sir—once for all, no!" answered Harborough. "There's no necessity. I may be kept locked up for a bit, but the truth about this matter'll come out before ever I'm brought to trial—or ought to be. Leave me alone—I'm all right. All that bothers me now, my girl, is—you!"

"Then don't bother," said Avice. "I'm going to stay with Mrs. Northrop. They've insisted on it."

Brereton was going out of the cell, leaving father and daughter together, when he suddenly turned back.

"You're a man of sense, Harborough," he said. "Come, now—have you got anything to suggest as to how you can be helped?"

Harborough smiled, and gave his counsel a knowing look.

"Aye, sir!" he answered. "The best suggestion you could get. If you want to find out who killed Kitely—go back! Go back, sir—inch by inch, through Kitely's life!"

CHAPTER X.

THE HOLE IN THE THATCH.

Bent, taking his guest home to dinner after the police court proceedings, showed a strong and encouraging curiosity. He, in common with all the rest of the townsfolk who had contrived to squeeze into the old court-house, had been immensely interested in Brereton's examination of Miss Pett. Now he wanted to know what it meant, what it signified, what was its true relation to the case?

"You don't mean to say that you suspect that queer old atomy of a woman!" he exclaimed incredulously as they sat down to Bent's bachelor table. "And yet—you really looked as if you did—and contrived to throw something very like it into your voice, too! Man, alive!—half the Highmarket wiseacres'll be sitting down to their roast mutton at this minute in the full belief that Miss Pett strangled her master!"

"Well, and why not?" asked Brereton, coolly. "Surely, if you face facts, there's just as much reason to suspect Miss Pett as there is to suspect Harborough. They're both as innocent as you are, in all probability. Granted there's some nasty evidence against Harborough, there's also the presumption—founded on words from her own lips—that Miss Pett expects to benefit by this old man's death. She's a strong and wiry woman, and you tell me Kitely was getting somewhat enfeebled—she might have killed him, you know. Murders, my dear fellow, are committed by the most unlikely people, and for curious reasons; they have been committed by quite respectable females—like Miss Pett—for nothing but a mere whim."

"Do you really suspect her?" demanded Bent. "That's what I want to know."

"That's what I shan't tell you," replied Brereton, with a good-humoured laugh. "All I shall tell you is that I believe this murder to be either an exceedingly simple affair, or a very intricate affair. Wait a little—wait, for instance, until Mr. Christopher Pett arrives with that will. Then we shall advance a considerable stage."

"I'm sorry for Avice Harborough, anyway," remarked Bent, "and it's utterly beyond me to imagine why her father can't say where he was last night. I suppose there'd be an end of the case if he'd prove where he was, eh?"

"He'd have to account for every minute between nine and ten o'clock," answered Brereton. "It would be no good, for instance, if we proved to a jury that from say ten o'clock until five o'clock next morning, Harborough was at—shall we say your country town, Norcaster. You may say it would take Harborough an hour to get from here to Norcaster, and an hour to return, and that would account for his whereabouts between 9 and 10 last night, and between five and six this morning. That wouldn't do—because according to the evidence, Kitely left his house just before nine o'clock, and he may have been killed immediately. Supposing Harborough killed him at nine o'clock precisely, Harborough would even then be able to arrive in Norcaster by ten. What we want to know, in order to fully establish Harborough's innocence is—where was he, what was he doing, from the moment he left his cottage last night until, say, a quarter past nine, the latest moment at which, according to what the doctor said, the murder could have been committed?"

"Off on one of his poaching expeditions, I suppose," said Bent.

"No—that's not at all likely, answered Brereton. "There's some very strange mystery about that man, and I'll have to get at the truth of it—in spite of his determined reticence! Bent!—I'm going to see this thing right through! The Norcaster Assizes will be on next month, and of course Harborough will be brought up then. I shall stop in this neighbourhood and work out this case—it'll do me a lot of good in all sorts of ways—experience—work—the interest in it—and the kudos I shall win if I get my man off—as I will! So I shall unashamedly ask you to give me houseroom for that time."

"Of course," replied Bent. "The house is yours—only too glad, old chap. But what a queer case it is! I'd give something, you know, to know what you really think about it."

"I've not yet settled in my own mind what I do think about it," said Brereton. "But I'll suggest a few things to you which you can think over at your leisure. What motive could Harborough have had for killing Kitely? There's abundant testimony in the town—from his daughter, from neighbours, from tradesmen—that Harborough was never short of money—he's always had more money than most men in his position are supposed to have. Do you think it likely that he'd have killed Kitely for thirty pounds. Again—does anybody of sense believe that a man of Harborough's evident ability would have murdered his victim so clumsily as to leave a direct clue behind him? Now turn to another side. Is it not evident that if Miss Pett wanted to murder Kitely she'd excellent chances of not only doing so, but of directing suspicion to another person? She knew her master's habits—she knew the surroundings—she knew where Harborough kept that cord—she is the sort of person who could steal about as quietly as a cat. If—as may be established by the will which her nephew has, and of which, in spite of all she affirmed, or, rather, swore, she may have accurate knowledge—she benefits by Kitely's death, is there not motive there? Clearly, Miss Pett is to be suspected!"

"Do you mean to tell me that she'd kill old Kitely just to get possession of the bit he had to leave?" asked Bent incredulously. "Come, now—that's a stiff proposition."

"Not to me," replied Brereton. "I've known of a case in which a young wife carefully murdered an old husband because she was so eager to get out of the dull life she led with him that she couldn't wait a year or two for his natural decease; I've heard of a case in which an elderly woman poisoned her twin-sister, so that she could inherit her share of an estate and go to live in style at Brighton. I don't want to do Miss Pett any injustice, but I say that there are grounds for suspecting her—and they may be widened."

"Then it comes to this," said Bent. "There are two people under suspicion. Harborough's suspected by the police—Miss Pett's suspected by you. And it may be, and probably is, the truth that both are entirely innocent. In that case, who's the guilty person?"

"Ah, who indeed?" assented Brereton, half-carelessly. "That is a question. But my duty is to prove that my client is not guilty. And as you're going to attend to your business this afternoon, I'll do a little attending to mine by thinking things over."

MOVING PICTURES.

LYCEUM HALL LEASE.

Spencer's Pictures, Ltd., v Cosens.

On the 5th inst., in Chambers, his Honor granted an interim injunction restraining until the 8th inst. the defendant, Spencer Cosens (also known as Cosens Spencer) from entering into a lease of the Lyceum Hall, Pitt-street, Sydney, or making any agreement in respect thereof with any person or company doing or proposing to do in such building similar business to that sold by the defendant to the plaintiff, Spencer's Pictures, Ltd. Yesterday Mr. Claude Weston, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, moved on behalf of the plaintiff to continue the injunction. The motion was opposed by Mr. Adrian Knox, K.C., and Mr. F. R. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Vickery, England, and Wilson, who represented the defendant.

The matter at issue was connected with the sale by the defendant to the plaintiff of the former's moving picture business in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, and other Australian cities. Clause 12 of the sale agreement contained a provision by which the vendor (the present defendant) was not to be prevented from purchasing and leasing the freehold or leasehold of any theatre to anyone approved by him. It was, however, stipulated that, if he desired to let such premises for the exhibition of moving pictures the vendor should first offer in writing to the plaintiff company a lease of the property before doing business with any person or company. The defendant on the 18th ult., in accordance with the above condition, wrote to the Union Theatres, Ltd., stating that he had acquired a lease of the Lyceum Hall for seven years from February 1 upon terms mentioned. The defendant then offered to the plaintiff his lease, which contained numerous conditions, the rent being fixed at £110 a week. Acceptance of the offer was limited to seven days. The plaintiffs replied that the terms of the lease were wholly unreasonable, and practically limited the lease to four weeks. The plaintiffs did not accept the defendant's right to take a lease of the hall. The question of the lease went so far that a plan of the proposed alterations to the hall was discussed between the parties. The plan did not clearly show the number of seats in the hall, but the defendant thought that, approximately, there were 1000 seats on the ground floor and 750 in the dress circle.

Harry George Musgrove was examined on his affidavit by Mr. Knox.

To Mr. Weston: Deponent thought J. D. Williams and Co. with the General Film Co. sold their business partly to the Union Theatres and partly to the Australian Films, Ltd., and in return for that they took shares.

In giving judgment, his Honor said that, assuming a proper offer had been made by the defendant to the plaintiff within the meaning of the agreement, it had not been accepted by the time stipulated, and consequently the offer lapsed automatically. His Honor also ruled against the plaintiff's contention that the seven days' acceptance period had been extended, and said that further inspection of the plan to plaintiff had only been conceded by the defendant as an act of courtesy. On the 4th instant plaintiff wrote accepting the defendant's offer of the lease, but the latter then said it was too late. His Honor was of opinion that, even if the plaintiff had been allowed the extension to which he thought he was entitled, he would still be out of time, as the terms of his acceptance should have been unequivocal. The motion to continue the injunction was dismissed with costs. At Mr. Knox's request, his Honor directed an inquiry before the Master in Equity as to the damage, if any, sustained by the defendant, Spencer Cosens, by reason of the injunction order of the 5th instant.

Mr. Weston then applied to his Honor, sitting as a Full Court, for an injunction against defendant similar to that just decided, pending an appeal to the Full Court of three Judges. On plaintiff undertaking to bring into Court the amount of rental (£220) payable by him under the proposed lease, if accepted, from the 4th to the 18th instant, his Honor granted the injunction as asked, in terms of that previously granted, up to the 18th instant.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

PRIVATE AGREEMENT CONTESTED.

On November 21 last David Evans, of Pyrmont, wharf-labourer, whilst working in the hold of the Buninyong, a steamer owned by Australian Steamships, Limited, sustained a compound fracture of his skull. His injuries were so serious that he was treated for about a month in Sydney Hospital, and it is alleged that he will never be able to do hard manual work again. Evans signed an agreement, in which he acknowledged that he had received from Australian Steamships, Limited, £58 2s 11d in full satisfaction of all compensation, payable under the 1916 Act.

For the purposes of record, this agreement was sent to the Registrar of the Court (Mr. J. M. A. Bonthorne), who was not satisfied with the settlement of the matter, which he referred to his Honor for further consideration. According to Evans's statement of the case, he was so ill from his injuries that when he signed the receipt for £58 2s 11d, he believed that it was on account of £175 which he had claimed.

Mr. J. H. Clayton appeared for Evans, and Mr. Ebsworth (Messrs. Baxter, Bruce, and Ebsworth), for Australian Steamships, Limited. His Honor reserved his decision.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker and juries.)

(Mr. Herbert Harris, Crown Prosecutor.)

James Elliott pleaded guilty to a charge of embezzling a warrant and order for the payment of £30 10s, the property of his masters, William Henry Lambert and others, on September 1, 1917, and was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour in Bathurst gaol. His Honor said that if restitution were made he would recommend that the period of the sentence be reduced to six months.

Reginald Marr, who had pleaded guilty on three counts of receiving stolen property on November 23, December 1, and December 8, was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour in Goulburn gaol on each count, the sentences to be concurrent.

Denis Patrick Aloysius Reid and Frederick Samuel Shaw, who pleaded guilty to five charges of breaking and entering and stealing from dwelling houses at Mosman, Roseville, Neutral Bay, and North Sydney, were each sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour in Goulburn gaol on each charge, the sentences to be concurrent. Mr. E. R. Abigail appeard for the accused.

Henry McMahon and William John Fletcher, for whom Mr. W. D. McMahon appeared, were charged with having at Sydney on December 5 assaulted and robbed William Parkinson of the sum of £4/10/. The accused were acquitted, and thereupon discharged.

Before Mr. Burton Smith, S.M., at the Central Police Court, yesterday, Christina Rotney, 63, was charged with selling three bottles of beer at her house in Reservoir-street on the 6th inst without having a license to sell liquor.

The magistrate imposed a fine of £30, in default three months' imprisonment.

REAL ESTATE.

Real estate still continues to attract public attention for investment purposes. The market this week, although not quite as active as last week, showed a good return as far as sales were concerned, and was marked by activity in all other branches of the business.

The indoor sales were well attended, and competition for attractive city and suburban properties was in a number of instances keen, but the bidding in several places stopped short of the reserve by only a few pounds, and, as usual, neither side would give way. As an instance of this, Mr. Little, when conducting the weekly auction of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench yesterday, had an offer of £985 for a residence at Waverley. "I'll take £950," said the auctioneer, "while I am in the box." Three persons were bidding, but not one of them would advance the other £15, so the property was passed in for private treaty. A moment or two later the same auctioneer, after good competition, had a bid of £525 for a cottage at Leichhardt. "I'll take £540," said Mr. Little, but, failing to secure that amount, he knocked the property down at £525, subject to the approval of the owner, who was not present.

At the same sale Mr. Little, after a keen contest between a man and a woman, sold two houses in Stirling-street, Redfern, for £800. The man won. The auctioneer also disposed of a dwelling in Palmer-street, near Oxford-street, city, for £700, a water-frontage cottage at Connell's Bay, George's River, for £400, and half an acre of land adjoining for £40. There were altogether nineteen properties on the list, and there was bidding for most of them. During the week the firm sold by private contract a farm property at Mount Hunter, near Camden, for £2562; a block of dwellings, Palmer-street, Woolloomooloo, £1500; cottage, Park-road, Marrickville, £900; a cottage, Wilberforce-avenue, Rose Bay, £740; cottage, Thomas-street, Petersham, £550; cottage, Morgan-street, Petersham, £425; three lots, Terry's Estate, Eastwood, £213; allotment, Deewhy, at 30/ foot; allotment, Bankstown, at 15/ foot; two allotments, Lakemba, £120; two allotments, Smithfield, at £12 per acre; and land at Bundanoon at £50 per block.

Last Saturday Messrs. Richardson and Wrench sold 22 lots in the Taybank Estate, at Canterbury, at prices ranging from £2 to £4/10/ per foot. The sale realised £2672.

Messrs. Raine and Horne held a successful auction on Thursday at their rooms, when Mr. Rabett submitted a number of properties. There was bidding up to £3500 for the residence in Grantham-street, close to Macleay-street, known as Tarpeian. A terrace of three brick houses, Gipps-street, Paddington, was sold for £775. Premises in Liverpool-street, close to Crown-street, city, were disposed of for £800, subject to approval. A house and grounds, Jersey-road, Woollahra, were passed in at £975, and there was bidding for a number of other properties offered. During the week the firm sold an allotment at Bay-road, North Sydney, at £10/10/ per foot, a cottage at Northbridge, £775; an allotment, Mosman, £200; block at Maroubra at 30/ foot; land, Cole's Estate, Manly North, at 30/ foot; and two lots at Dee-why for £115.

Messrs. Hardie and Gorman had a good attendance at their rooms on Wednesday, when a number of properties came under the hammer. A block of land in Blenheim-street, Randwick, was sold for £620. This is equal to £7/15/ per foot. Another block in Botany-street Randwick was disposed of at £7 per foot, subject to approval, and a pair of cottages in Henry-street, Waverley realised £1040. The firm also sold a cottage in Lumsden-street, North Sydney for £658, a house, Belmont-street, Surry Hills, £656, and an allotment, Narrabeen, at 40s foot.

Messrs. Stewart and Morton report sales on account of Mr. Wm. Evans of his two dairy farms at Numba, on the Shoalhaven River, viz., 66 acres to Mr. A. C. Lamond at £58 per acre, 88 acres to Mr. A. Mottram at £60 per acre.

The building inspector's annual report presented at yesterday's meeting of the Blue Mountain Shire Council showed that 150 buildings at a cost of £38,038 had been erected within the shire during the year. This is a small decrease on the previous year's return. The towns showing the greatest advance were Blackheath 34, Wenthworth Falls 22, and Hazelbrook 20.

Messrs. Arthur Richard and Co., Limited, report a satisfactory week of steady business, with strong demands for Ettalong Beach, Woy Woy, and other seaside properties, including Pittwater, Cronulla, and Como, also several good farmlets sales at Girraween, Tongabbie, and Riverstone, and building lots at Hurstville, Kogarah, and Guildford.

Stanton and Son, Ltd., report having sold the following properties during the week:—Block, Canterbury-road, Belmore, at £4 foot; allotment, Kendall-street, Cabarita, at £2 foot; 84ft to Kendall-street, Cabarita, £169; block, Kendall-street, Cabarita, at £2 foot; brick cottage, Holborrow-street, Croydon, £850; w.b. cottage Allen's-avenue, Belmore, £500; 50ft to St. Alwynne-avenue, Narrabeen, and premises, £195; brick cottage, Parramatta-road, Haberfield, £1250.

Next Tuesday Messrs. Stanton and Son will conduct an indoor auction at the rooms of the association, when a number of suburban properties are to come under the hammer. This firm will offer the North Steyne Manly Beach Estate on February 23.

Messrs. Hugh Duff and Co. report having sold by public auction and private treaty the following properties during the week:—Cottage, Malvern-avenue, Chatswood, £700; block of land, Taraville-avenue, Roseville, £364; various allotments, Castle Rock Estate, Middle Harbour, £100.

The Bishopscourt Estate at Randwick will come under the hammer this afternoon, when Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will submit a number of choice building sites. As will be seen from our business columns, several of the blocks have been withdrawn from the sale. There has been big inquiry for this property, and the sale should be well attended.

The Government has fixed Saturday, February 23, as the date for the next sale of Crown lands at Maroubra. This sale will be conducted by Mr. H. Dudley. The sale which was postponed a few weeks ago on account of the weather will be conducted by Mr. Stanton, in April next.

O'Brien's Homestead Estate at Bondi, which has been locked up for many years, will be offered to the public in subdivision blocks by Messrs. Hardie and Gorman on February 23.

Next Saturday Messrs. Horning and Co. will offer the Township Estate at Gladesville. On the same day Messrs. Hardie and Gorman will submit Barden's Estate at Arncliffe, and Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will offer the second subdivision of the Great Central Railway Estate at Belmore. On the same date at Valley Heights, on the mountains, Messrs. Henry Halloran and Co. will submit the Oak Grove Estate.

The Verge Estate at Kempsey is to be offered by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench on March 23. These are very fine farm lands. The previous sales of this property attracted a large amount of attention, and the sales totalled thousands of pounds.

There are big inquiries for particulars respecting the properties in the estate of the late Mr. S. Hordern, which Messrs. Hardie and Gorman, Horning and Co., Stanton and Son, will offer in the rooms of the association on Tuesday, February 26. This is the first of the sales, and the list for this date embraces 18 very choice city and suburban properties, all of which should prove good investments. The Exchange corner, a block at the corner of Pitt, Bridge, and Dalley streets, a block of stores, Sussex and Liverpool streets, and a number of main road properties at Newtown, Pyrmont, etc., are included in the list.

Messrs. Piercy Ethell and Co. report having sold Woodlands, Angel-road, corner of Emu-street, Burwood, for the sum of £1250.

VOLUNTARY WORKERS.

The Hurlstone Park voluntary workers have erected on a block of land which they purchased at Campsie a brick cottage, which, together with the sum of £40, has been presented to the widow and family of the late Mr. S. E. Horton, of New Canterbury-road, who died suddenly, leaving his widow and four young children.

A GOLDSMITH SENTENCED.

George Rennie, 25, at the Central Police Court yesterday, was charged with having in his custody three small bars of gold, reasonably supposed to have been stolen. There were two charges.

Harry Sleeman, a jeweller and secondhand dealer, stated that he bought the gold from Rennie on two different dates.

Accused, who was defended by Mr. Leslie Gannon, said that he was a goldsmith. The gold had been smelted from filings and clippings. In slack times he worked at home. For about five months he had been in the employ of a city firm. The gold he had sold to Sleeman was his own property.

Mr. Burton Smith, S.M., convicted the accused, who was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour on each charge.

THE CHURCHES.

During the two days occupied by its second quarterly meeting, which was held in the Cowper Room at the Chapter House during the past week, the reconstituted Australian Board of Missions dealt with some important matters. Amongst other things, the establishment of a training home for women missionaries was regarded as most urgent. It was decided that the Gertrude Robson memorial fund should be devoted to founding a bursary for women missionaries, and for this object the sum of £500 is required. The finances of the board for the past nine months showed an advance of £1700, and it confidently hoped that this year's income will again be a record. Important questions of strategy in connection with mission work in the Pacific were dealt with. The meeting was presided over by the Rev. John Jones, B.A., chairman of the board, in the absence of the Primate.

The Chapter of St. Andrew's Cathedral on Thursday considered the appointment of a successor to the Rev. R. E. Freeth, M.A., who recently resigned the precentorship of the cathedral. Until the return of the archbishop, who is expected to reach Sydney on Monday, no final appointment can be made, but it is understood that the Rev. C. H. Lea, M.A., Chaplain of St. Peter's College, Adelaide—a gentleman of much experience—is to be recommended for appointment.

In connection with the negotiations that are proceeding regarding the proposed union of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational churches, representatives of the Home Mission Societies of the churches are conferring on overlapping in Home Mission spheres, and with the view of promoting co-operative effort. A proposal is also being considered in the direction of united Evangelistic work in the Sydney Domain and other places of public resort and midday services in shops and factories.

The Church of St. Saviour at Redfern is in urgent need of renovations, which will cost £250. Though large, the parish is very poor, and no hopes are entertained of raising this amount amongst the parishioners. An appeal for outside assistance has consequently been issued, and it is suggested that it is a worthy object for Lenten offerings. Contributions should be addressed to St. Saviour's rectory, Young-street, Redfern.

Archbishop Redwood, of Wellington, New Zealand, has accepted the invitation of the Redemptorist Fathers to the opening of the new college at Galong on the 18th inst. This prelate preached the dedication sermon when the late Archbishop Vaughan opened St. Mary's Cathedral in 1882.

The Rev. E. Corish, S.J., is leaving St. Mary's, Ridge-street, North Sydney, for a position to which he has been appointed in Melbourne.

It is announced that Archbishop Mannix has promised to visit Sydney early in March for the ceremony of laying the corner stone of the wing which is being added to St. John's College.

A High Mass, to celebrate the feast of St. Maroun, the Patron Saint of the Maronite nation, will be held at St. Maroun's Church, Elizabeth-street, Redfern, at 10.30 a.m. to-morrow.

The Very Rev. Father Sullivan, S.J. (Sydney), has been appointed successor to the Very Rev. J. O'Dwyer, S.J., as rector of Xavier College, Kew, Melbourne.

At St. Enoch's Presbyterian Church, Newtown, to-morrow morning a military church parade will be held, on the occasion of the unveiling of an extension to the honor roll by Colonel Lamrock, C.B., V.D. The work at William-street, which is now a branch of the activities, has been well sustained, with encouraging results.

SOCIAL.

Alderman W. Archer, who has been connected with the Burwood Council since its foundation 44 years ago, and in addition represented Burwood in the Parliament of this State for a period of nine years, celebrated his 87th birthday yesterday. To mark the appreciation of his services, and to wish him many happy returns, a social function was tendered him at his residence at Burwood last evening. The Premier (Mr. W. A. Holman), Mr. J. C. L. Fitzpatrick, the Mayor, and aldermen of Burwood, and of the adjoining municipalities were present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Sandy have left on a visit to Calcutta.

At St. James's Church, King-street, Sydney, on January 12, the marriage was celebrated of Percy Arthur, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Bradford, of Johannisburg and East London, South Africa, and Fanny May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, of Starkey-street, Hurlstone Park. The Rev. P. A. Byrnes officiated. The bride entered the church with her father, wearing a dress of white satin and bridal tulle, the skirt being a white tulle overdress embroidered in silver and pearls, and the bodice silk blonde lace, with silver and pearl trimming, and a pretty Dutch cap of tulle and orange blossoms and pearls under the chin; her bouquet and diamond cluster ring being presents from the bridegroom. The bridesmaids, Miss Emily Wells and Miss Doris Lonsdale, cousins of the bride, and Miss Ethel Bradford, cousin of the bridegroom, wore pretty dresses of white silk with overdresses of white net and ribbon; each carried a bouquet, which, with gold bracelets, were gifts of the bridegroom. The bride's present to the bridegroom was a diamond pin. Mr. T. Gonsales was best man, and Master L. Maidment groomsman. The wedding breakfast was held at the Fresh Food and Ice Co.'s reception rooms, King-street, city, where guests were entertained at a musical evening. Mr. J. Maidment officiated as chairman and M.C. Subsequently the newly-married couple left for their honeymoon, which was spent at Port Hacking, the bride travelling in a cream costume and a grey hat with silver lace and cerise velvet trimming.

A wedding of Australian interest was recently celebrated at St. James's, Piccadilly, London, when Miss Rita Kiddle, daughter of the late William Kiddle, of Walbundrie station, near Culcairn, was married to Major H. D. Foster MacGeagh, London Rifle Brigade, only son of Mr. Foster MacGeagh, of Hadlow Castle, Kent. The property of Walbundrie was left to Miss Kiddle by her brother, Captain Geoffrey Kiddle, who died on active service last year in Mesopotamia. It is now under offer to the Government for a returned soldiers' settlement.

A wedding was celebrated at Abbehome on January 23 betwen John Archibald, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Lee, of Abbehome, Puggoon, and Gladys, seventh daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sharpe, of Pine View, Narromine. The bride was dressed in white chepe-de-Chine, trimmed with true-lovers' knots and lace. The train was trimmed with shell pink tulle, orange blossoms, and pearls. Her gold pendant and chain and a bouquet of white roses and lily of the valley were the gifts of the bridegroom. Miss Eileen Lee, sister of the bridegroom, the bridesmaid, was attired in shell pink crepe-de-Chine, trimmed with pearls, and a hat to match. She wore a gold brooch, and carried a bouquet, the gifts of the bridegroom. Mr. Jack Campbell acted as best man, and Mr. George Jackson groomsman. The happy couple left by the afternoon train for Sydney, where the honeymoon is being spent. The bride's travelling dress was an Assam silk costume with hat to match.

At Ashfield Methodist Church the marriage of Alfred, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Cloke, of Mount Lewis, Liverpool, and Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Jolly, of Carlton, late of Mount Lewis, was celebrated by the Rev. F. W. Hynes. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a white frock and hat. Her bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Jolly (sister of the bride) wore champagne coloured crystalline over pale pink, and a hat to match. Wedding tea was served at Weldon, Carlton, the residence of the bride's parents. The bridegroom was recently invalided home after two years' active service.

ENGAGEMENT.

The engagement has been announced between Charles MacLeod, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. MacLeod, of Carlton House, Randwick, and Doris, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Douglass, of Elstree, Point Piper.

ON THE LAND.

THE OPOSSUM.

(BY W. M. SHERRIE.)

A lady writing from the Cooma district recently described what the people of that part classed as an "unknown animal"; that is to say, no one could be found who had ever seen such a creature before. This experience would seem to suggest that even the opossum family is not as well known as it should be in rural districts. The animal inquired about was the pigmy flying opossum (Acrobates pygmeus). For the most part these pretty little creatures are confined to Southern Queensland, N.S.W., and Victoria. The adult is about three inches in length, with a tail about the same. The form is very slight, and the fur soft and silky. The colour is generally a greyish brown above, with white underneath and on the inside of the limbs. They have a "parachute," like the squirrel, extending from the thighs to the forelegs. Their habits are similar to those of the squirrel. They can run up one tree, and, by extending their "parachute," fly down to the butt of another some little distance away.

There are several other species of flying 'possum of a larger size. One of the largest of these is the yellow-bellied flying 'possum (Petaurus Australis), which is about a foot long, with a tail of some sixteen to seventeen inches. The fur is long and brown in colour, but there are various markings of yellow and black. The under-surface is orange-tinted, while the chin is black. The "parachute" is dark brown with orange edges. The tail is very bushy. On the whole, the colouration is very striking and handsome. The habitat of this species is the coastal ranges of New South Wales and Victoria, but the animals must be very rare now, excepting perhaps in some favoured and inaccessible places. The largest of the tribe is the greater flying 'possum (Petauroides volans). These animals are from seventeen to eighteen inches long, with a tail up to 20 inches. They are a dark ashy grey in colour, but there is a good deal of variation in this respect. Some are much darker and others lighter. They are found in Eastern Australia, from Queensland to Victoria, but are not often seen now anywhere.

The lesser flying 'possum (P. volans) is the same, excepting that it is smaller, and is found only in Central Queensland. It is about 12in long. There is another lesser flying 'possum which has its habitat in northern and eastern Australia. This one is about seven inches long. A larger species is the squirrel-like flying 'possum (Petaurus sciureus), which is found in Eastern Australia, from Victoria to Queensland. This member of the family runs to about 16 inches in length. It has a tail of the same length. The general colour is a pale grey above, with white, tinged with yellow underneath. The Phalangerinae is a much larger family than is generally supposed. Most people are familiar with the [illegible] black, and the ringtail 'possum, [illegible] this the popular knowledge does not [illegible] pronounced extent. Indeed, the present generation has but little knowledge of even such one-time familiar forms as the silver grey and the black. For some years past the skins of these varieties have been worth upwards of 10/ each, so it is not surprising that they should be gradually vanishing.

In the Upper Murray, and other mountainous regions which once swarmed with blacks and silver greys, there are now but a few scattered survivors. For many years over 50,000 'possums per week were trapped in the Upper Murray district alone, and when prices were much lower than they have been during the past decade not a few men made from £10 to £20 per week from the sale of skins. The common ringtail—being of much less value and of hardy and resourceful type—still survives in country where the blacks and silver greys have disappeared. One might go out now in some of the well-timbered suburbs of Sydney, and have a better chance of catching a 'possum than in some parts of the interior, where they were to be found in countless thousands in the pre-settlement days. Perhaps the largest known member of the family is the Spotted Cuscus (Phalanger maculatus), but this is not exclusively Australian. This animal is said to range from Northern Australia to southern New Guinea and the Malayan Archipelago. Its colour is variegated white, rufous, and black, and it has a length of head and body of from 20 to 25 inches. The tail is almost equally long.

The "common 'possum" (Trichosurus vulpecula) is a grizzled grey, with a blackish chin and white, or dirty yellow, underpart. It is from 15 to 18 inches long. This species is distributed all over Australia, with the exception of Cape Yorke district. It is very heavily and densely furred. The short-eared 'possum is peculiar to New South Wales, and a part of Queensland. It is of large size, but has shorter fur than some of the others. It is a grizzled grey, with a rufous tinge. The tail is black and very bushy. The common ring-tail 'possum is fairly large. It inhabits eastern Australia from Queensland to South Australia. Its colour is generally grey or rufous above, and greyish-white underneath. 'Possums generally make their nests in the hollows of trees, but the ringtail is an exception. It builds an open nest of sticks and leaves. There are a number of species which are indigenous only to certain regions of Australia, and have no general distribution over the continent. Among these may be mentioned the western ringtail (confined to Western Australia), the Herbert River 'possum, the sombre 'possum (Herbert River), the striped 'possum (Queensland), and Leadbeater's 'possum (Victoria). Western Australia and Tasmania also have two or three species of the Dormouse 'possum, which is about the same size as the pigmy flying 'possum referred to.

THE WOOL TRADE.

EQUITY OF TREATMENT.

Appraisements have been proceeding with great smoothness in the Sydney market, and considerable headway is being made with the valuing of and payment for the current season's wool production. Early shorn wools are still appearing in the catalogues, together with a sprinkling of clips from the northern, central, and southern tablelands. There will soon be another rearrangement of apportionment of quantities to be catalogued by the various firms of selling brokers, and a larger proportion of late shorn wools will appear in the catalogues. The offerings comprise clips from the principal wool-growing districts, including the west, north-west, and Riverina. A fact that needs to be kept in mind in connection with the order in which wools are catalogued is, that they are offered in the order of shearing dates; which is entirely in accordance with clause 24 of the wool regulations, which stipulates that: "The general policy to be observed in the administration of the regulations shall be equality of treatment."

Exception has been taken to clips of large pastoral companies and others coming into the catalogues in the order of shearing, particularly those that were formerly realised in London. It is inferred, rather than stated, that these wools should be kept outside the pale of equity of treatment in the order of appraisement, because they were not marketed in Australia prior to the acquisition. The argument is used, that, through the equity of treatment rule, small growers, who shear later, are thereby kept from having their wools catalogued as speedily as might otherwise be the case. Quite overlooking the fact that one broad principle had to be laid down, in the administration of regulations—and that "equity of treatment" is absolutely unassailable. The fact is also overlooked that, by the regulations, all the wool grown in the Commonwealth, except that stripped from green sheep skins, has to be sent for appraisement to one or other of the appraising centres. There is no option; possibly those companies or growers who formerly realised their clips in London would prefer to do so now; but they are debarred; they must sell here, and simply take their turn, according to shearing dates.

It so happens that most of the early shorn wools in this State come from the slopes and plains, where the large flocks are run, and are owned in many cases by companies who shipped their wools to London. These in the main come on to the Sydney market before the growers with smaller flocks think of shearing. Large clips accumulated before the appraisement commenced this season.

In any discussion on this question the first point that needs to be emphasised is the fact that if this season's wool production could have been sold to the British Government immediately after the balance of the 1916-17 season's wool was appraised in July, and appraisements of the current season's production had taken place in August or September, early-shorn wools that have recently been catalogued would long since have been appraised. This was not possible. The best, under all the circumstances, was unquestionably done by the Government and the Central Wool Committee in the sale of the wool. Also, in commencing the appraisements as early as possible after the purchase negotiations were completed, and the machinery perfected for appraising the wool. Instead of there being any question raised at the order in which the wools of large and small growers are catalogued, both enjoying equity of treatment according to shearing, the greatest satisfaction should be expressed at the fairness of the system, and the expedition of the appraisements since the start was made this season.

SOME APPRAISEMENT RESULTS.

On Monday the last catalogue of the seventh series was submitted for appraisement, and on Tuesday the first two catalogues of the eighth series were taken in hand. The other catalogues, as per roster, were proceeded with on the three following days. On Monday next the series will continue, and be brought to a conclusion on Wednesday. The wools have been drawn from a wide area of the State, and comprised a large proportion of crossbred than in the earlier appraisements, also wools of finer grades, and showing better condition. Among the notable lines of greasy merino and crossbred, together with scoured merino, appraised in the seventh and eighth series, were the following:—

UNITED STATES W[illegible] [illegible]TROL.

America has now fallen into line in the Government control of wool, and has issued regulations that are enforced by a War Trade Board. The regulations do not apply to imported wool purchased abroad on or before December 15 last. In the earlier stages of the war, before the United States became an Ally, wools were imported from the United Kingdom and British Dominions subject to British supervision. The wool had to be imported to and handled by the Textile Alliance; now all wools have to go to the Government. Exporters are also governed by the regulations. With regard to imports of wools purchased abroad prior to December 15 the regulations state that:—

"Applicants for import licenses will therefore file with their first applications copies of all their contracts outstanding on December 15, 1917, for the importation of wool from foreign sources, and as to which all wool contracted for had not been arrived at any United States port of entry December 15, 1917, and showing in detail the amount of wool already shipped and the amount yet to be shipped thereunder.

"The War Trade Board, in fixing the effective date of the foregoing regulations as of December 15, 1917, had as its object the avoidance of any retroactive effect which would be burdensome and embarrassing, and earnestly appeals to wool importers and to manufacturers of woollen products so to conduct their transactions with respect to the stock of wool now on hand and the importations now en route, that further speculation, hoarding, and the continuation of fictitious prices may be avoided.

"It is hoped that the effect of these regulations will be to clarify the situation and remove the causes for anxiety which have occasioned the abnormal and illogical inflation of prices for that commodity.

"The price of wool has advanced in the United States by a percentage greatly in excess of such price advances in other countries. The price in England is fixed at 55 per cent. in excess of pre-war prices. The price in the United States has advanced 250 per cent. above the pre-war level. . . ."

WHEAT FOR POULTRY.

SCHEME TO HELP FARMERS.

The cry from the poultry farmer for better treatment from the State Wheat Office has not fallen on deaf ears, as far as the manager, Mr. R. S. Drummond, is concerned. He has been investigating the situation and evolved a scheme that should commend itself to the poultrymen concerned. During the week Mr. Drummond visited Blacktown and other centres, and found the farmers feeding their poultry on most inferior wheat, for which they had to pay a price which should have secured them a good class of wheat, according to the sales made by the department. Mr. Drummond recognises they are not being treated fairly, and intends trying a new system of distribution. Instead of the poultry farmer having to come into the stack at Enfield if he wants to get wheat direct from the State Wheat Office, it will be taken out to the farmer's centre.

Early in March Mr. Drummond intends to send out a few trucks of wheat to different poultry centres in the neighbourhood of Sydney and a clerk and a man to deliver the wheat. The bags will all be guaranteed true to sample, and the weight will be marked on the bag. The wheat will be sold at from 3s 3d per bushel to 4s 3d, and may be purchased by poultry farmers in bag or ton lots. The sales will be for cash. The locality to which the trucks are going will be notified a few days previously. Arrangements have been made with the railway to provide transport as required.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1918.

THE EMPIRE AND THE STATE.

The announcement that a new session of the Imperial Conference is about to be held in London must provoke doubts and questions among the Australian people different in many respects from those which will be raised in other parts of the Empire. Like New Zealand and South Africa we shall have special interests to safeguard. We shall be deeply concerned in every proposal for future adjustments of territory or development of trade since the war has demonstrated the community of interest between the different Dominions and between the United Kingdom and each of them. But certain of the proposed arrangements will interest the Australian delegates more directly than any of their colleagues. It will be of vital importance to them to know how far the proposed terms of peace will affect the defence of their country in the future, how far its prosperity may be forwarded or its civilisation modified. Whatever influence they may have will be used for the purpose of urging that Germany is not restored to positions from which she may dominate or threaten the Australian coasts on the outbreak of any future war. The delegates to this conference will begin their proceedings with the knowledge that British Ministers have not yet pledged themselves to take up any definite attitude at the Peace Conference on the subject of the German colonies. Mr. Long has declared that he believes that they should not be returned. But he has not spoken for his fellow-Ministers, and the Prime Minister has stated that Great Britain will settle this question like many others at the Peace Conference, and like every other, only after discussion with her Allies. The Australian delegates may therefore find themselves in this position, that their claims may compete with other nations or Dominions, and that recognition of them may involve the prolongation of the war. If a choice has to be made they are bound to ask themselves, or to be asked, what right they have to a preference or what claim they may have to any further sacrifices on their behalf. An Australian will remember that while his fellow-citizens continue to enjoy ease and comfort and plenty, every day of the war is bringing individual hardships to the inhabitants of Great Britain. He will be forced to contrast our comparative immunity from loss with the sufferings of a people who, besides volunteering in hundreds of thousands, have conscripted their married men and their discharged soldiers. The Canadians and New Zealanders will be privileged to speak with a sense of equality. Though they have not felt the privations of war they have done all that was possible in a community removed by long distances from Europe. The Australian people have failed, whether they are judged by the example of actual sacrifices or by the test of goodwill. They have not submitted to the test of discipline which other Dominions have accepted after realising that their sacrifices had been insufficient, they have not proved that after rejecting conscription they were ready to fight for freedom, they are not showing that they are willing to forego a fraction of their pleasures or amusements in order that they may pay their own share of the cost of defence.

Critics will always be puzzled by the contrast of the bravery, the tenacity, and the good comradeship of the Australian soldier with the indolence and the short-sightedness of his stay-at-home brothers. Gallipoli, Pozieres, and Bullecourt demanded all the virtues that make a people great. The domestic history of the past months has given examples of all the faults which must ultimately deprive a nation of its prosperity and its independence. Men have obstinately refused to recognise that they live in a world of rival nations, they have continually acted as if it were possible to spend capital and to continue to depend on the interest derived from it, to banish thrift and still to enjoy good credit, to spend days and weeks in quarrelling, and yet to reap the benefit of hard work. Such a desperate provincialism will be sharply checked by the experience of an Imperial Conference. The Peace Conference, for which it is to be a preliminary, will define the boundaries and the policies of nations for generations. The Imperial Conference will not nicely weigh the services of each Dominion and allot the reward or punishment according to its sacrifices. But each delegate, in pressing his claims, will be oppressed or encouraged by the general knowledge of the efforts and sacrifices of his own Dominion. If we do not rapidly improve on the record of the past few months we shall do better to send no representative at all. Before June we have forty millions of money to raise or else let it be said that a rich country in which wealth is more evenly distributed than elsewhere in the world has fallen back on the already overburdened British taxpayer. We shall have to find many more recruits or else confess that we are the first of the British communities to shirk the strain of the war. If we fail in either of these respects we shall have finally destroyed the Australian tradition that none of us shall make his profit out of the labours of others. We have kept our security and our independence solely through the might of the British navy. We have enjoyed our prosperity because the British taxpayer has been willing to buy our products at high prices. It is certain that we must submit to bear a greater part of the hardships of the war if we hope that the same security and prosperity are to be preserved to us in the future. The Athenian general had a splendid answer to make when told before the battle of Salamis that he could not vote because his city had been destroyed. Our danger is that the Australian representatives will have no right to speak because, although their city has been preserved, their people have not done what they could for its defence. In the heart of the Empire, with the grief and pride of sacrifice all about them, they will be unable to urge any claim for a people which has not foregone any one comfort or any single hour of amusement.

THE NEW WORLD.

This war is fashioning a new world for us. Happily for us in Australia the changes have been, and will be, less violent than in other parts of the world which have been more closely connected with, and consequently more affected by, war conditions; but there will be changes nevertheless. And they will be chiefly concerned with the relations between employers and employed—or, in the phrase more usually adopted by economists and trades unionists, capital and labour. It is because this fact is recognised by the Government of New South Wales, and because the need is felt for legislation which will help to meet the new conditions, that Mr. Beeby, as Minister for Labour and Industry, has just introduced his Arbitration Bill. This bill makes radical alterations in the existing law. Whether these alterations will have the desired effect remains to be seen; but one thing is certain, and that is that the time had come either to mend or end the old law. It is complained by some of the Trades Hall representatives that the bill has been framed in the interests of the employers and not the workers, but the employers might very well retort that the old arbitration system was designed in the interests of the workers and not the employers. The truth is, of course, that arbitration legislation is a success or not according to the spirit in which it is received by both sides. The Australian arbitration system has been pointed to by the thinking men of other countries, and notably by the American commission of business men who visited this country a few years ago, as a failure, as an example to be avoided; but it was not the system itself which was so much at fault as the failure of the working classes to accept it in the right spirit. Similarly now our faith in the new legislation is only to be measured by the willingness of both employers and employees to compose their long-standing differences—to sink the feeling that capital and labour are necessarily antagonistic to each other—and pull loyally together and give it a fair trial. We do not for a moment imagine that a man like Mr. Beeby is showing any "class-conscious bias," as has been charged against him. Practically the whole of his political life has been spent in the service of the working man, and whilst the treatment accorded him and other leaders of the Labour party has undoubtedly produced some resentment the community regards Mr. Beeby as a man of honour and good feeling, whose only thought is to serve his country faithfully and if possible, bring about a happier state of affairs. In other words, we believe his object is to do justice to both sides. Everything is to be judged by the simple test of what is a fair thing. Mr. Beeby frankly admits that some of his proposals are experimental. It is not to be thought that this is the best of all possible bills, and it will probably be years before we succeed in evolving a perfect system of arbitration. Possibly we shall never do it, for nothing is perfect in this world; but at least we can try. The new legislation will deserve a fair trial.

We have already pointed out that some of the proposals made by Mr. Beeby are inspired by the Whitley Report in Great Britain. Britain, although closer to the seat of war than we are, and with a more intimate recognition of the great issues that hang upon it, has yet had its serious strikes—the shipbuilding strikes on the Clyde, the strike of the Coventry engineers are still fresh in our memory; and it goes to show that the war has produced an industrial unrest such as the world has never experienced before. It is the workers, after all, who do most of the fighting; and apart from that fact, the war could not go on without the workers in the shipyards and in the munition factories. It is not surprising, therefore, if, realising their power as they now do, they are showing a discontent with the old order of things that is becoming more and more marked. Dr. Arthur Shadwell, Sir Sidney Low, and other writers in recent English reviews, have dealt with this changing of the old order and the coming of the new. The British worker, they tell us, will never again be content with the conditions of life which prevailed before the war, and difficult as will be the clearing up of many vexed questions at the Peace Conference the post-war problems confronting all the belligerent nations will be still more difficult and complex. Russia is not the only country that has been stirred to its depths by this war. The special industrial commissions which were appointed by the British Government in June last "to report upon labour unrest and to make recommendations" consisted of representatives of employers and employed. After a thorough inquiry, they found that, whilst there was "a solid determination to finish the war," the industrial unrest was real and widespread, and such as to constitute a national danger unless dealt with promptly and effectively. The London Commission, for instance, reported:—"We are at this moment within view of a possible social upheaval or at least extensive and manifold strikes. No tinkering schemes will meet the requirements of the situation. It is necessary to secure to the working man a fair share of the product of his labour, and a just participation in the establishment of the conditions of industry." Then there was the report of a representative sub-committee appointed by the Reconstruction Committee—since created a department—on the subject of "relations between employers and employed." It is known, from its chairman, a well-known cotton-spinner in Yorkshire who employs thousands of hands, as the Whitley report, and among other things it advocated the establishment for each industry of an organisation, representative of employers and work-people, having as its object the regular consideration of matters affecting the progress and well-being of the trade from the point of view of all engaged in it. This is one of the things which Mr. Beeby now proposes in New South Wales. Commenting on the Whitley report, the "Round Table" remarks:—"As the history of State intervention during the war has abundantly shown, it is not the system of private enterprise which is at fault but the spirit and motive with which it is too often conducted . . . There is abundant evidence that the lessons of the battlefield are slowly finding their way back to the workshop and the counting-house." So, in Australia, we too must prepare for the new world that is being born, and if Mr. Beeby's new arbitration proposals are not the last word on the subject they, at all events, represent an honest attempt to meet the new conditions. Here, as in Great Britain, everything depends on the spirit in which we apply ourselves to the great task that lies before us.

PERSONAL.

The visit of the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, to Sydney the week after next will extend over three or four days.

The Minister for Repatriation, Senator Millen, will arrive from Melbourne by to-day's express, and will return to Melbourne on Tuesday. This afternoon he presides at the opening of the Recreation Rooms for returned soldiers and members of the A.I.F., provided by the Manly Amateur Fishermen's Association.

Mr. J. G. Bice, M.L.C., Minister for Public Works in South Australia, is in Sydney to inquire into shipbuilding. Mr. Fitzpatrick, Assistant Treasurer, and Mr. Bice will visit Newcastle on Monday next.

Alderman John M'Master was yesterday elected Mayor of Brisbane. He is 87 years of age.

Mr. Victor H. Green, manager of Messrs. George Shirley, Ltd., who has completed 25 years' service with that firm, was yesterday entertained by the directors and staff at the firm's offices in Spring-street. Dr. Elliott and Mr. Harry Levy, on behalf of the directors and staff, made presentations to Mr. Green.

Mr. E. Hamilton Ray, chief clerk of the Department of Mines, is retiring from the Public Service after 45 years' service. On behalf of the officers of the department, Mr. Cambage, Under-Secretary, presented Mr. Ray with a gold watch.

Messrs. G. H. Fenn, H. A. Parkes, and C. Purcell have been successful in the recent examination for certificates as mine electricians, held at the Newcastle Technical College.

At the monthly meeting of the Granville branch of the Red Cross, the resignation of Mrs. Charlton, as president, was accepted with regret. Mrs. Charlton has been connected with the branch ever since its formation. She was presented with a rose bowl. The Mayoress, Mrs. C. Townsend, was elected president in Mrs. Charlton's place.

Mr. G. W. Griffiths, storekeeper, of Manildra and Walla, who left early in August last as a voluntary worker for the Australian branch of the British Red Cross in London, and who has been at Hurdcott, Salisbury Plain, acting as searcher for sick and wounded soldiers, is seriously ill with pneumonia at his sister's home in Birmingham. His son, who is on active service in France, has been sent for.

SHIPPING CONTROL.

Mr. Grahame, Minister of Agriculture, returned to Sydney yesterday morning from Melbourne, where he attended a conference convened by the Prime Minister to consider the question of freights. Mr. Grahame said that the recommendations put before the conference by Admiral Clarkson, as amended, would be forwarded to the Prime Minister for transmission to the State Premiers.

It was recognised by the conference that details of the proposed scheme, with the probable effect upon local prices and other conditions, were necessary before any State could come to a decision. These details are to be prepared by Admiral Clarkson, and submitted with the recommendations carried by the conference. Until these details are forthcoming there is nothing to discuss as the participation of any State in the proposed scheme will depend upon its position as disclosed by the details to be submitted. It will take a week or more for the officers concerned to prepare this Statement. "No agreement of any kind was reached other than to submit the recommendations of the conference for the consideration of the respective Governments."

DEFENCE ADMINISTRATION

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, stated to-day that he had drawn up a memorandum on the report on Defence Administration and finances generally furnished by the commission appointed to investigate these matters, and this had been circulated amongst his colleagues. It now remained for the Cabinet to deal with the matter. As soon as this was done he would publish the report, and also his memorandum.

REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVE SAFELY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

It is notified by the Defence Department that the reinforcements which left Sydney on November 5, and Melbourne November 9, have disembarked on completion of their voyage. Reinforcements which proceeded from Sydney on November 16, and Fremantle November 23, have also arrived safely at their destination.

MINERS' MINE.

FEDERATION'S PROPOSAL ENDORSED.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The Colliery Employees' Federation has definitely decided to own and control their own coal mine. The minute of the delegate board, having reference to this matter, has been endorsed by a large majority of the federation, the miners offering very little opposition to the proposal. One of the federation said the proposal, if carried out, would have tremendous influence upon the fortunes of the federation for several reasons. First, it was quite evident that the production of coal in the northern district was going to be a most important factor with regard to the industrial life of the Commonwealth. At least two-thirds of the coal raised in this State came from the northern district, thus showing that the northern district was the centre of the coal trade of the community. Secondly, the federation had seen small companies rise into a position of strength and affluence by taking charge of coal mines in one district, and gradually extending their control to other districts. That showed that with anything like successful management coal-mining was a good business proposition. Regarding the management of the proposed mine, the federation should be in a happy position, as they had amongst their members men who had qualified as managers and under-managers, and in other positions. It certainly looked a good proposition in every way.

MILITANT LABOUR.

POLICE FLOUTED.

CITIZENS CARRY REVOLVERS.

CLONCURRY (Q.), Friday.

The beer strikers have been very active the last two days, openly insulting citizens who drink in hotels declared black. The men go about in groups. A Russian named Orman was arrested on Wednesday and charged with creating a disturbance and resisting arrest. The Russian assaulted a stockman named Murphy, who was drinking in a hotel against the men's wishes. He was fined £5 or three months. Grevey, secretary of the temperance committee, was charged with obscene language. The case was adjourned. Grevey asked for an adjournment for the purpose of getting the A.W.U. solicitor from Townsville to defend him. The men are openly flouting the police, and the citizens are carrying firearms as a means of protection.

The Mount Cuthbert strike continues. A large number of men came to town on Wednesday and another 150 are expected. A flood shortage at Mount Cuthbert compelled the men to leave. A misunderstanding in engaging men at Townsville was the cause of the strike. Too many were engaged for the work available. A mass meeting was held yesterday and a motion carried in favour of asking the Premier to take over the mine and work it. One man wanted all to sign a petition to go out and take charge of the mine, which would be "direct action" tactics.

All rivers in the Cloncurry district are in high flood.

TRAVELLING POST-OFFICES.

SOME SERVICES ABOLISHED.

In his report recently submitted to Parliament, the Postmaster-General pointed out that, as a result of inquiries, which were still proceeding, into the utility of the mail-sorting vans in various parts of Australia, a number of such services had been found to have outgrown their usefulness, and approval had been given for the discontinuance or modification of many of them. Such action, it was added, would mean a saving of approximately £35,000 a year.

The following official statement has been made relative to some of these services:—Up to December 10 last two travelling post-office services were running to the northern districts, one north-west, and the other on the main line to Wallangarra, by trains leaving Sydney within a period of 35 minutes. The duplication of the T.P.O. work between Sydney and Werris Creek was not warranted, and was an unnecessary expense. One van was, consequently, discontinued between Sydney and Werris Creek. The north-western districts are still served by T.P.O. services between Werris Creek and Moree, and Narrabri and Burren Junction. The main line is still dealt with in the T.P.O. van attached to the Brisbane express, which now leaves Sydney before the north-western train. No inconvenience has arisen through the withdrawal of this service, and all necessary mail exchanges have been maintained. The alteration in the arrival time of the train at Sydney obviates the need for Sydney mails from the north-west being sorted en route, as there is ample time after arrival of the mail at the G.P.O.—about 9.35 a.m.—to deal with the matter in Sydney before the next delivery commences at 12.45 p.m. When the new arrangements were first introduced a few slight delays occurred, and in some instances mail matter was over-carried on the north-west by reason of a misunderstanding on the part of several postmasters in respect to the detail arrangements. A special officer was detailed to watch the working, and these difficulties were soon rectified. The over-carriage ceased early in December last, and the new arrangements since then are working satisfactorily. Within the past few months the following T.P.O. services have been abolished:—(1) Sydney to Werris Creek by north-west train (T.P.O. service now given by Brisbane express on this section); (2) Orange to Forbes; (3) Junee to Whitton. The working of the T.P.O. services throughout the State is being closely observed, and they will not be interfered with at the expense of the circulation of mail matter."

WEEVILS IN WHEAT.

GRATIFYING REPORT BY PROF. LEFROY.

An encouraging statement was made yesterday afternoon by the Premier, with regard to the reconditioning of wheat in this State that has been affected by weevil, and the prospects of preventing the further ravages of this pest. Professor Lefroy had an interview with the Premier yesterday. Mr. Grahame, Minister for Agriculture, and Mr. Drummond, officer in charge of the State Wheat Board, were also present. Subsequently, Mr. Holman made the following statement:—

"Professor Lefroy gave us an account of his observations, which were of an extremely satisfactory character. No doubt, in many directions the weevil had obtained a very definite footing, and a large amount of destruction had occurred, which might have been averted if the entomologists had been consulted twelve months earlier. But now that the position is realised, everything that is necessary to cope with it is, Professor Lefroy thinks, being done. He has recommended certain steps to the Minister for Agriculture, and to the Wheat Board, and these are being carried out with quite adequate speed and energy. Professor Lefroy will be in this State two months longer, during which time the treatment which he recommends will be applied to a large quantity of affected wheat, and he has undertaken to furnish the Government with a memorandum setting forth his views as to the course that should be adopted, not only as to the treatment of wheat already affected, but as to stacking in order to preserve the new wheat from infection."

The Premier added that it was only fair to the officers of the Agriculture Department and Wheat Board to point out that the problem presented by this weevil difficulty is an entirely new one in the history of wheat-growing in Australia. Ordinarily wheat moves off so rapidly that there is not the same opportunity for the weevil to develop as has been afforded by the great stacking of the last two years.

ARBITRATION BILL.

MINERS CRITICAL.

WOLLONGONG, Friday.

Commenting upon Mr. Beeby's speech on the proposed Arbitration Bill, prominent miners stated this morning that Mr. Beeby's endeavour to prevent strikes is right enough, but he appears to be under the impression that employees alone are responsible for all strikes, and that the employer is blameless in such matters. The best method, said a miner, to prevent strikes is to remove the necessity for them. Under the present conditions it would be useless to lay down a minimum wage, and then have to depend upon conciliation or arbitration to justify that wage.

The Bulli Lodge has adopted a motion affirming that it does not put any trust in any proposals put forward by the Department of Labour, and also expresses their confidence in the efforts of the executive of the federation.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA

COMING CRISIS

WILL ENEMY ATTACK?

LONDON, Feb. 7.

A message from Zurich states that German newspapers publish sensational reports of the decisions of the Austro-German headquarters staff, and of the two Governments indicating the completion of plans for a campaign on a big scale against Northern Russia and the Western Powers.

General Ludendorff, it is stated, has insisted upon special measures by both Governments against the revolutionary movement.

News via Amsterdam states that the "Lokal Anzeiger" declares that momentous decisions may be expected in a few days regarding the East front, which will be different from the so-called peace negotiations at Brest-Litovsk.

"Vorwaerts" uneasily demands the publication of these momentous decisions.

The "North German Gazette" says it is semi-officially reported that a condition of anarchy exists in Russia, where the majority of the people detest, but fear the Bolsheviks. It adds significantly on the authority of neutral travellers that nearly all the inhabitants say, "We want the Germans to come. Only they can help us."

A later Zurich report says political circles in Berlin state that the Central Powers' war conference was mainly occupied over the conclusion of peace with the Ukraine, which the Government considers likely, though a settlement with Trotsky is improbable.

In order to come to an agreement with the Ukraine it is necessary that Germany should not break off pourparlers at Brest-Litovsk. Though the armistice expires to-day (Thursday) it must not be concluded that Germany is about to denounce the armistice.

The "Taegliche Rundschau" denounces the Government for sitting at the same table with Trotsky, "making the Germans powerless against the anarchy which is flooding our country, and driving peacefully disposed Russians against us."

THE POLISH QUESTION.

Petrograd advices state that Trotsky, replying to Herr von Kuhlmann at Brest Litovsk, on Sunday, agreed to acknowledge Polish independence, but refused to recognise Kouchashevsky's government because it was not representative of the Polish people.

Discussions in Berlin failed to solve the Polish problem. The Germans persist in all their demands concerning the industrial and mining regions of Russian Poland, giving Austria-Hungary in exchange for the latter's sacrifices only agricultural lands.

NO REPORTS FROM TROTSKY.

A Petrograd message says that in reprisal for the severance of Trotsky's means of communication with Petrograd, the Government has ordered the stoppage of the Austro-German Mission's direct wire from Petrograd.

THE UKRAINE.

ALEXIEFF'S ARMY.

A Petrograd report states that General Alexieff, with 24,000 Cossacks, is advancing northward in the direction of Kharkoff to meet the Bolsheviks.

Heavy fighting preceded the fall of Kieff. The Bolsheviks brought up 200 guns. The Ukrainians were forced to retreat, blowing up the bridge across the Dnieper.

General Kaleidin's opposition to active operations against the Bolsheviks rather limits Cossack activities in defence of the Don district.

It is reported that great numbers of officers and soldiers have volunteered for General Alexieff's army, many officers joining as privates.

POLISH ARMY.

CONFLICT WITH BOLSHEVIKS.

A Petrograd message states that Krylenko's capture at Mohilev by the Poles was a precautionary measure, the result of the Bolsheviks arresting the Polish Military Committee, engaged in the organisation of the Polish army. The Russian Commander-in-Chief and his staff are regarded as hostages for the committee's safety. The Bolsheviks are opposing the idea of a separate Polish army, which would fight against the Germans with its own officers, though half a million Poles are included in the Russian army.

When the Bolsheviks ordered a Polish army corps to march against the Ukraine, the Poles flatly refused. The Bolsheviks then attempted to disarm one regiment, murdering two officers with revolting cruelty. Simultaneously disbanded Russian soldiers committed murders in Lithuania, which is largely Polish. They pillaged hundreds of estates and sugar refineries, outraging and killing all who resisted. The aged Prince Sanguszko was assassinated, and his palace destroyed. Polish troops vigorously intervened in favour of their countrymen, machine-guns being used in the conflict.

The Poles are determined to defend the Governments of Vitebsk, Mohilev, and Minsk against the Petrograd anarchy. Thus far the Poles always have had the upper hand over the Bolsheviks owing to their superior discipline and arms.

Petrograd advices on Wednesday stated that, owing to Polish legions threatening the general headquarters at Mohilev, the latter are being transferred to Petrograd.

Lett regiments sent to Mohilev refused to fight against the Poles. Any armed Polish officers taken prisoners will be handed over to the revolutionary tribunals, and, in the event of resistance, will be liable to be shot without trial.

PALESTINE.

HOW ARABS ROUTED TURKS.

An official report from Palestine states: Our aeroplanes on Sunday bombed camps at Miskeh, scoring 47 direct hits. On Monday they dropped 1900 pounds on the same objectives, 37 direct hits being observed. All returned.

The Arabs in the Hedjaz region routed 11 battalions of Turks 11 miles northward of Tafile, on January 26, killing 400 and capturing 300 men, two mountain guns, 18 machine-guns, and 800 rifles. The Arabs on January 28 successfully attacked a Turkish post on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea. Only 40 Turks escaped. Sixty Turks were captured.

GERMAN COLONIES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.

Commenting on the opinion of Mr. Massey (Prime Minister of New Zealand), expressed in an interview that Germany ought not to be allowed to recover Samoa, the Canadian Press endorses the view that the overseas Dominions ought to be represented at the Peace Conference. It is pointed out that if Canada conquered any German territory she would vigorously object to relinquish it.

THE TUSCANIA.

DEATH-ROLL DECREASES.

DESTRUCTION OF SUBMARINE CLAIMED.

LONDON, Feb. 7.

The British Admiralty announce that the steamer Tuscania was torpedoed on Tuesday night off the coast of Ireland while carrying American troops.

The saved include 2011 soldiers, 141 of the crew, and 35 others, out of a total of 2397 aboard.

The missing number 210.

Other advices from London state that the loss of life on the Tuscania does not exceed 100.

A Washington report says Admiral Sims cabled that it is believed the Tuscania is still afloat. There is nothing in other messages to confirm this.

The Tuscania was attached to a convoy. She had no warning, or sight of a submarine, but just at dusk a torpedo struck her full amidships. Immediately afterwards another torpedo passed her astern.

The Tuscania took a big list immediately. The men were called to their boat stations, but the list made it impossible for the lifeboats to be properly lowered. Some men jumped into the water. The lowering of the upper lifeboats was responsible for a good many casualties.

The survivors were landed quickly. They were fitted out with clothes and lodged in hotels.

The Tuscania was afloat for four hours before sinking.

The rest of the convoy is safe.

A Washington reports says official advices show that the torpedoing occurred north of Rathlin, an island off the north coast of Antrim.

The Lord Mayor of Belfast telegraphed to the United States Ambassador (Mr. Page) his deepest sympathy, offering all necessary help.

Many of the survivors had never seen the ocean or been aboard a ship until they embarked. Some were in the water from 6 in the evening to 1 o'clock in the morning, clambering aboard rafts and waiting in inky darkness for rescue or the dawn. Private Purington, an undergraduate, says he was on the upper deck when the torpedo struck on the starboard side. There was a terrific explosion. The life-saving crew immediately ran to their stations, but the dynamo was blown up, and the lights failed almost immediately. The auxiliary lighting plant was put into operation, and flares were lit on every deck. In the first darkness succeeding the explosion, there was some difficulty in lowering the lifeboats, the chains being broken and the tackle getting tangled. Two boats capsized, and the occupants struggling in the water added to the confusion. Purington's boat was half filled with water. There were 40 aboard, and they had to jump into the water, where they remained three hours, until a mine sweeper rescued them. They were tormented by terrible cramps during the latter part of the time in the water. Many dead bodies were floating around.

Other accounts state that the soldiers lined up in the darkness waiting to get the boats. Their discipline and courage was superb. The men held on as best they could to a nearly perpendicular deck, lowering boat after boat with swiftness and precision. The rapid canting of the liner, however, put many boats out of use. Rafts of all kinds were tossed overboard in order that those who had been flung into the sea might have a chance of life.

SPLENDID RESCUE WORK.

Eight British destroyers did splendid rescue work. The Tuscania formed part of a convoy, and was fully escorted. An American officer narrates that during the first excitement following upon the explosion there were megaphone calls all over the ship "There is no danger of her sinking before all have been taken off." Meanwhile S.O.S. signals were sent off, and before some realised what had happened British destroyers were alongside They took off the men in perfect order.

One destroyer got 500 aboard. She was drawing off from the Tuscania when the submarine fired another torpedo, which missed the destroyer. A sister destroyer immediately dashed off on a bomb-dropping enterprise, and it is claimed that the submarine was "done in."

Sergeant Dubuque, of Brooklyn, states that when the crash came the vessel took a tremendous list to starboard. Nearly all the eight lifeboats on that side were either blown into the air or rendered useless. He and his comrades immediately lined up, standing at attention and singing the "Star Spangled Banner," and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." The ship's crew sang the National Anthem, which is the same tune as "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." "As our boat was lowered," said Sergeant Dubuque, "the ropes became disarranged, and we all were precipitated into the heavy sea. Luckily I was able to swim to a raft, many of which were thrown over the port side." Dubuque when picked up was unconscious.

FEELING IN AMERICA.

A message from Washington states that the nation was saddened by the early report of the Tuscania disaster, but the later news of the small number of casualties has caused many to view the sinking merely as an unfortunate war incident, such as must be expected.

The opinion is unanimous that the occurrence will tend to speed-up America in the war.

The New York papers comment soberly on the occurrence, and reflect a sterner resolve to utilise the nation's entire resources for the defeat of Germany. The "Herald" asks: "Who informed the Germans of the departure of the Tuscania? America is honeycombed with spies. When will the hangings begin?"

Mr. Baker (United States Secretary for War), commenting on the incident, said that the United States had been challenged by an adversary who had refined and made more deadly the stealth of the savage in warfare. "We must and will win," he declared.

U-BOATS BEING MASTERED.

The sinking does not affect the official opinion that the U-boats are being mastered. There is reliable information that the number has been dwindling from the early winter, and there are only from 12 to 18 in the barred zone. Their production is decreasing, and it is believed there are less than 30 large submarines now operating.

FINLAND.

SOCIALISTS DEFEATED IN THE NORTH.

A Stockholm report states that General Mannerheim has captured Kemi, which was the Red Guards' last stronghold in North Finland. The civil war is now confined to South Finland, particularly Helsingfors.

The White Guards yesterday attacked the Russians at Tornea, taking 300 prisoners.

The "Tidningen" states that the Russians are ousting the Finnish Maximalists at Helsingfors. Russian reinforcements are arriving, and the Baltic fleet is threatening Helsingfors from Sveaborg.

HOLLAND.

BLOCKADE RESTRICTIONS.

An Amsterdam message says that Herr von den Busech (German Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs), in the course of an interview with the Berlin correspondent of "Handelsblad" on the Dutch-American negotiations, said that Germany could not quietly submit to an outrage whereby the enemy's position would be improved and Germany placed in a worse position. America wanted to extend the blockade to the German-Dutch frontier, and apparently counted on Germany not allowing her neighbour to die of hunger and cold. Germany, however, in her fight for existence, could not show any special kindness to Holland when her interests were opposed thereto.

BRITISH RAIDS.

ON WESTERN FRONT.

LONDON, Feb. 7.

Sir Douglas Haig, reporting at noon on Thursday, stated: We successfully carried out a raid east of Armentieres, taking some prisoners. Hostile artillery is active at Cambrai and Lens.

On Thursday night Sir Douglas Haig reported: We raided a post south-eastward of Queant, killing or capturing several of the garrison.

We repulsed raiders west of La Bassee.

The enemy's artillery has been active north-westward of St. Quentin and eastward of Monchy-le-Preux.

Our aeroplanes dropped over a ton of bombs on targets behind the enemy's lines. Two hostile machines were brought down. Two of ours are missing.

FRENCH REPORTS.

A French communique on Thursday afternoon reported very lively reciprocal artillery fire in the Chavigny, Porgny, and Filain region, north of the Aisne, in the sector of Samogneux, at Hill 344, on the right of the Meuse, and at Hartmannsweilerkopf.

After violent artillery preparation the Germans unsuccessfully attempted to penetrate our lines at Banholtz (Alsace) in two places.

A French communique at midnight on Thursday stated: An enemy attack at daybreak on a small post north of Craonne was repulsed. The Germans followed up the bombardments reported this morning on the right of the Meuse and in Alsace, with three surprise attacks, east of Samogneux, on the northern side of Fosses Wood, and south of Hartmannsweilerkopf. All were repulsed.

NEXT OFFENSIVE.

ALLIES EXPECT GERMAN ATTACK.

(FROM MR. F. M. CUTLACK, ASSISTANT WAR CORRESPONDENT TO THE A.I.F.)

With winter more than half over, the armies on each side of the line are beginning to feel out for information they want for opening the new year's campaign. Raids and patrol encounters reported up and down the line reveal extensive endeavours to obtain identification of the enemy's units. There is a great movement along the roads and railways behind both lines. There are more roads and railways than appear on the maps of any general atlas. These were increased during the winter months' preparation. The battle areas are covered with light railways sufficient to open up a whole continent, and are more numerous than even this closely settled country ever thought to bear. Aeroplanes from reconnaissances far into the German lines report a great stir of troops and transport. The movement is naturally paralleled on this side. Other air squadrons are despatched over lines nightly on bombing expeditions against new camps and ammunition dumps. The enemy attempts to conceal his concentrations by marching, and with railway activity at night instead of the day, camouflaging depots and gun positions, but the huge movement involved in manoeuvring modern armies makes it impossible to hide for long. Infantry raids confirm the reconnaissance of the aircraft.

It is not improbable the Germans will attack with the first approach of favourable weather, believing that a new force is gathering for the offensive on our side, and hoping to forestall Allied arrangements.

The whole of the Western front is equipped to receive the shock whenever or wherever it comes.

AIR FIGHTING.

ON ITALIAN FRONT.

An Italian official report states: An Italian airship dropped a ton of explosives on an aviation ground south-eastward of Vittorio.

The Allies have brought down 56 aeroplanes in the past 11 days.

JAPAN'S ASPIRATIONS.

POSSESSIONS IN PACIFIC.

The "Manchester Guardian," publishing the Russian Foreign Office archives, gives the text of despatches from M. Krupensky, Russian Ambassador in Tokio. Krupensky mentions a conversation with Baron Montono, Japanese Foreign Minister, in February, 1917, relative to China's proposed intervention in the war. Baron Motono pointed out it would be necessary to safeguard Japan's interests at the peace conference, and to secure the Allies support for Japanese aspirations in Shantung and the Pacific Islands.

Baron Motono said that Japan desired all the rights and privileges hitherto possessed by Germany in the Shantung Province; also the acquisition of the Pacific Islands north of the Equator, then occupied by Japan. He added that recent relations between Japan and Britain justified the surmise that the London Cabinet would not object.

Krupensky, in a despatch dated March 1, stated that Japan desired the earliest assurance of Russia's support.

TRIAL OF BOLO.

Paris reports say Bolo Pasha is showing signs of depression as the trial proceeds. He is losing his dapper appearance, and no longer wears an air of smiling indifference.

During a series of remarkable disclosures by an expert accountant showing the receipt of vast sums of money since the war, Bolo's bravado waned, and he nervously tugged his moustache. The crowded court frequently applauded when the prosecution sought to establish the fact that Bolo, on the outbreak of war, was living on the interest of his wife's income. A few months later he was juggling with millions, with which he embarked on a campaign of intrigues to purchase controlling interests in French newspapers.

A French actress told the court that Bolo asked for her assistance, promising her 10 per cent. commission.

Under frequent cross-examinations Bolo pleaded that he suffered lapse of memory, due to being in a railway accident when a youth.

Eighty witnesses have yet to be called.

LORD DUFFERIN'S DEATH.

LONDON, Feb. 7.

The death is announced of the Marquis of Dufferin, from pneumonia.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

General sympathy with Lady Helen Munro Ferguson was felt in Melbourne to-day on receipt of the news of the death from pneumonia of her brother, the Marquis of Dufferin. He was born in 1866, and succeeded the first Marquis (the distinguished statesman and diplomatist, who was Governor-General of Canada, Viceroy of India, British Commissioner in Egypt, and Ambassador at Petrograd, Constantinople, Rome, and Paris) in 1902. He entered the diplomatic service, and served in Constantinople, Paris, and Stockholm. More recently he was engaged at the Foreign Office. In 1893 he married Florence, the daughter of Mr. John H. Davis, of New York, by whom he had three daughters. When Lord Basil Blackwood, brother of the late Marquis, was killed in France last year while serving in the Grenadier Guards, his younger brother, Lord Frederick Blackwood, became heir. The new Marquis, who was born in 1875, is well known in Australia, having served as military secretary to his brother-in-law, Sir Ronald Munro Ferguson, Governor-General of the Commonwealth. He has served in the European war, and has been wounded twice and mentioned in despatches twice. In 1908 he married Brenda, only daughter of Mr. Robert Woodhouse, of Orford House, Bishops Stortford, and has a son and a daughter.

LATE WAR NEWS.

TUSCANIA'S SURVIVORS.

HAZARDOUS RESCUES.

LONDON, Feb. 8.

There was much anxiety in Glasgow, to which most of the Tuscania's officers and crew belonged. Many women awaited the survivors' arrival by train. There were affecting scenes when weeping women failed to obtain definite tidings of relatives.

An engineer said a considerable number were lost through drowning and exposure. A raft was picked up on which five men were lashed. Only two were alive, and they subsequently died aboard a patrol boat. Many who jumped into the sea were lost in the darkness. One swimmer owed his rescue to the fact that he carried an electric torch.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in rescuing survivors from rafts. In the rough sea these frail craft at one moment overlooked the deck of the rescuing trawler, and the next moment the trawler towered above them. Some lives were lost in these hazardous rescue operations.

The Americans are proud of the behaviour of the only two women aboard, who went down the rope bravely into the first lifeboat.

THE PEACE WRANGLE.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Express" telegraphs: Delegates to Brest-Litovsk have telegraphed that upon the resumption of the negotiations the Central Powers demanded the immediate signing of a separate peace. The Russians unanimously refused. Despite this rebuff the Central Powers did not break off negotiations, fearing thereby to make it impossible to conclude the urgently desired bread treaty with the Ukraine.

It is reported from Petrograd that the council of the people's commissaries has sent an ultimatum to the British Embassy declaring that unless Britain recognises Litvenoff as Ambassador in London they will take stringent measures against British subjects in Russia. Litvenoff has not attempted to take over the Embassy. Instead he has established an office in Victoria-street, and his wife acts as secretary.

MR. ROOSEVELT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

Mr. Roosevelt has again been operated on. His condition is serious but is not regarded as critical.

AMERICA'S AID.

Congressman Caldwell, in the course of a speech, said that America had 2,139,000 men under arms.

TO THE WORKER.

The Soviet, according to a Petrograd message, is appealing by wireless to the workers of Berlin and Vienna to do their utmost to see that the Brest-Litovsk negotiations begun with Kuhlmann end with Liebknecht.

KING OF BAVARIA.

The King of Bavaria is visiting German headquarters. A semi-official statement attributes political importance to the fact, adding that the King will speak in a conciliatory manner, but making it clear that South Germany repudiates pan-German war aims.

APPEAL OF THE CHURCH.

The convocation of Canterbury has agreed to a resolution recommending the people of the Empire sympathetically to consider the formation of a union of free nations for the preservation of permanent peace. The Archbishop of Canterbury said the world will escape horrors of war only when a change comes in men's hearts abandoning ambitions founded on aggression and greed."

ARCHDUKE'S DEMISE.

A report from Amsterdam says that the German newspapers announce the death in Petrograd of the Archduke Nicholas Nicholaievitch in mysterious circumstances.

GERMAN DESERTERS.

Desertions from the German army are increasing. There is a danger of Holland joining Germany unless the Allies supply her needs.

New York officials have made the closest search of all passenger and incoming liners fearing the importation of German fungus designed to kill the wheat.

THE ITALIAN COLLAPSE.

The London correspondent of the New York "Times" interviewed Marconi as to the cause of Italy's recent military collapse, said it was due to the withdrawing of the other armies after the first had given way. Some Italian experts thought that Cadorna could have used troops to surround and trap the enemy. This was now the subject of investigation.

SUBMARINES FOR THE PACIFIC.

The New York "World" says information has been received from Rotterdam that Germany is transferring large sections at the Krupp works underground as a protection against expected air raids. Germany is planning a submarine campaign in the Pacific.

LORD MAYOR'S PATRIOTIC FUND.

TOTAL CLIMBING UP.

"The response to the appeal of the Lord Mayor's Patriotic Fund for £150,000, wherewith to carry on for another year the work of assisting the dependents of soldiers on active service has now resulted in nearly £17,000 reaching the Town Hall," said one of the honorary treasurers last evening. "The most satisfactory thing about this amount is that it has come in fairly small sums; in other words, a great many people, widely scattered, are voluntarily responding to our appeal.

"We are now beginning to get a fair number of contributions from the country—although nothing like what we expect ultimately—and there are excellent prospects of a considerable sum being raised through the subscription lists which are now being circulated in many business establishments. By means of these lists we are catching the very important 'silver contribution.'

"We have thankfully to acknowledge voluntary effort on our behalf in many directions. The Millions Club, in order to stimulate interest in the fund, is giving a luncheon at Farmer's on Thursday, when many leading men will be present; the Hunter's Hill people are organising a house-to-house collection; the Bondi people are holding an attractive two-weeks' carnival; and so on. The indications are that the stream of subscriptions will tend to increase during the next few weeks."

WAR NOTES.

THREATENED OFFENSIVES.

It is generally agreed that Germany has prepared for early offensive operations during the present year, and, as the time when she is likely to disclose her intentions draws nearer, it is only natural that forecasts and guesses as to her future actions should be varied and numerous. It is certain that the Central Powers know the value of secrecy in this connection, and they will no doubt create diversions, and take every possible precaution to keep their opponents in the dark as long as possible. The violent artillery fire on the Aisne, Verdun, and Alsace sectors referred to in the French communique this morning might not have any special significance, and the attempt to penetrate the French lines at two points in Alsace might not have been anything more than a minor operation. The Germans, however, preceded their Verdun offensive by several determined attacks on other sectors of the front, and they will no doubt make similar feints before committing themselves to their main offensive on the Western front this year. These diversions are not confined to military tactics, and it is quite possible that the veiled references in the German Press to "momentous decisions" regarding the Eastern front may be intended to distract attention from the main theatre of war where the most momentous events may be looked for. It is possible, however, that the Central Powers may be able to embark upon simultaneous offensives, as the Allies intended to do prior to the collapse of Russia. A campaign against Northern Russia at the present time would no doubt prove a one-sided affair. Austria, with her Italian front shortened and strengthened by recent successes, and with her Eastern armies practically free, should have sufficient troops to spare, after rendering Germany some assistance in the West, to test the strength of the Allied line in Macedonia. This should be a more inviting prospect for the Central Powers than a campaign against Northern Russia. Whatever happens in the East, however, there is not much doubt that big operations will be attempted on the West, where the final test of the strength of the belligerents must be made.

AN ARAB SUCCESS.

Although the official message from Palestine published this morning does not indicate any important fresh development in connection with the main campaign there, it suggests that the co-operation which the Arabs from the Hedjas are affording is by no means meagre. The Arab forces which are making their presence felt away to the right of the British troops in Palestine are apparently in some strength, if, as the message states, they routed eleven Turkish battalions, killing 400 and capturing 300 men, as well as two mountain guns and 18 machine guns. These Arabs, who have hitherto mainly confined their efforts in this northern area to raids on the Hedjaz railway, have evidently secured an effective success, of which they have reason to be proud. The village of Tafileh, 11 miles north of which the engagement between the Arabs and Turks took place, is situated about 20 miles south-south-east of the Dead Sea. The other successful Arab attack referred to in the message was made on a Turkish post on the eastern shore of the Dead Sea. The British front in Palestine lies to the north-westward of the Dead Sea, and the Arabs are therefore the only obstacle in the way of the Turks on the eastern side of that sea. They have long been sufficiently strong to render the Hedjaz railway a poor, if not useless, line of communication for the Turks. This Hedjaz railway is probably identical with the "Aden railroad," which a Washington message, published yesterday, stated was the probable objective of the British forces advancing beyond Jerusalem. If the campaign in Palestine continues with anything like the success which recently attended it, these Arab forces should eventually link up with the British right. In the meantime they appear to be rendering valuable assistance, and preventing anything like a Turkish flanking move being made from this region.

THE BOLO CASE.

The evidence in the Bolo case, which is creating such interest in Paris at the present time, throws further light upon the extensive ramifications of German propaganda. Abhorrent though the system of espionage and underhand working adopted by Germany may appear to the British, French, and Americans, it must be recognised as a serious factor in connection with the present stage of the world war. The artifice of influencing public opinion in belligerent and neutral countries is by no means a weapon to be ignored now that the straining point is being reached. It is a weapon which the Allies have permitted Germany to monopolise too long already. That she recognised its usefulness long before the Allies is perfectly plain from the evidence in the Bolo case. That this intricate plot has been unveiled is not as remarkable as the fact that this man, who was living on the interest of his wife's capital prior to the war, should have been able suddenly to juggle with millions, and purchase controlling interests in French newspapers without arousing suspicions. In its early stages the case aroused considerable interest in England, and several questions were asked in the House of Commons as to whether British newspapers which propagated a similar policy to that carried out by the German-subsidised French Press were being similarly subsidised. In reply, Sir George Cave stated that the Government was on the lookout for German influence in all its forms, but it was not in the newspapers specially referred to that it was likely to be found. Asked whether the Government would dare to touch a newspaper run by Lord Northcliffe, Sir George Cave stated that he would interfere with any newspaper he suspected of being so influenced.

LENOIR AND THE "JOURNAL."

The manner in which Germany's agents were working up this great plot over two years ago was disclosed at the time of the arrest of Lenoir and Desouches, confederates of Bolo, a few months ago. The Lenoir Syndicate had invested £400,000 in the Paris "Journal" in July, 1915, and the object of this investment was made clear in a letter written to the director of the "Journal" by the Swiss correspondent of the paper as far back as November, 1915. The correspondent had approached Munir Pasha, former Turkish Ambassador in Paris, with regard to a proposed enquiry concerning the conditions of life in Berlin, Vienna, and Constantinople. "All was arranged," wrote the correspondent, "when on August 11 there arrived in Switzerland M. Pierre Lenoir, whom I knew by hearsay as one of the principal shareholders of the new company. M. Lenoir, who had asked me to visit him at Berne, declared to me at our first interview that he was in reality the sole proprietor of the 'Joural,' and that he desired in this capacity to arrange personally the conditions and details of the contemplated journey. M. Lenoir maintained with much insistence that the true enemy was England, who had made France her tool and her dupe, and who was profiting by the war, which she had long and astutely prepared, to ruin for her own gain, in all the markets of the world, our commercial, industrial, and financial power. M. Lenoir did not conceal from me that this view was that of certain most influential financial circles and that the duty of the 'Journal' . . . would be to make this known little by little to the country. Munir Pasha . . . did not conceal from me after his return that his inquiry had been pursued from one end to the other with the concurrence of Herren Bethmann Hollweg, Zimmermann, Burian, Forgach, and Rappoport, some of whom had left in his hands autograph traces of their collaboration, and all of whom had received him in the capacity of special envoy of the 'Journal,' and with attentions which he freely compares to those which are ordinarily reserved for Sovereigns. . . . It was in his special carriage that Munir Pasha brought back the proposals of a separate peace, which he is semi-officially commissioned to lay before the Government of the Republic, or at least to make known to the French public by means of the 'Journal.' . . . In these conditions Munir Pasha's notes are what they were and to be—the oratorical device which prepares and sanctifies a betrayal. I shall not insult you by believing that you would be disposed to publish them."

SIR JOHN FORREST

Raised to the Peerage.

UNIQUE HONOUR FOR AUSTRALIAN

Our London correspondent cabled yesterday that Sir John Forrest, according to an announcement by the Press Bureau, had been raised to the peerage. He is the first Australian created peer.

The following official announcement has been received by the Governor-General from the Secretary of State for the Colonies:—

"His Majesty the King has been pleased to confer the dignity of a Barony of the United Kingdom on the Right Honourable Sir John Forrest in recognition of his long and distinguished services to the Empire."

LORD FORREST, P.C., G.C.M.G., LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.G.S., M.P.

Of those who have illumined the pages of Australian history, more especially in the early pre-Federation days, few stand out more prominently than Lord Forrest. He has justly been termed one of the greatest of living Australians. In no part of Australia, however, will the latest honour bestowed upon him be more warmly acclaimed than in Western Australia. There he was born, and there are to be seen on all hands everlasting monuments to his statesmanship and the bold developmental policy which marked the regime of the successive Forrest Governments in that State. Lord Forrest is 71 years of age, having been born at Bunbury, one of the busiest of Western Australia's ports, in 1847. Bunbury is known as the "birthplace," largely because of his association with it, and also because of the fact that it is the native town of another distinguished Western Australian—Sir Newton Moore, late Agent-General for Western Australia—whose broad outlook, optimism, and dominating personality, also did much for Western Australia. The old home where Lord Forrest was born, on the outskirts of Bunbury, is one of the historic spots in the western State. From the train window people point to it with pride as the home of Western Australia's "Grand Old Man." This is only one manifestation of the people's affection for him.

Lady Forrest was also born in the State, and belongs to an old family there—the Hamersleys—has very closely identified herself with the Liberal movement, and later the National cause, and if there was one thing upon which people agreed at election times in Western Australia is was the striking and effective manner in which she assisted her husband if a campaign had to be fought. Particularly was this so when Mr. Peter O'Loghlen, the member for Forrest in the State Parliament, counting no doubt largely upon his popularity among the timber workers and other Labour supporters, flung down a challenge to Sir John Forrest. It provided splendid scope for her marked organising ability, which, together with her tireless energy, did much to achieve success for her husband. Lady Forrest, who is a popular hostess, is well-known also for her artistic paintings of the wild flowers of her native State, for her abundant hospitality, and for the collection of historical relics of Dutch navigators in the west. There are no children of the marriage.

The new Peer's life has been fruitful of good work, not alone for Western Australia, but for all Australia; nor has he distinguished himself only in the domain of politics. His name is just as widely known as an explorer, his expeditions into the interior of Australia as a young man occupying an ample page in the annals of Australian exploration. It was largely as a result of his daring in forcing his way into unknown parts of the interior, through trackless and waterless wastes, and amidst hostile natives, that the mining, pastoral, and agricultural potentialities of the western State were discovered. Lord Forrest commanded three expeditions into the heart of Australia. It was as a youth of 22, four years after he had entered the survey department of Western Australia, that he first went out into what was then the unknown, in search of Leichhardt. A year later, he set out again, accompanied this time by his brother, the late Mr. Alexander Forrest, to whose memory a statue stands in a prominent part of Perth. This expedition was along the coast from Perth to Adelaide, and it was not long after his triumphal entry into the South Australian capital that the wilderness again called to him. On this third occasion he traversed the centre of the continent. His work at the head of these expeditions won for him the thanks of the State Parliament, the gold medal of the Royal Geographical Society of London, and a Government grant of 5000 acres. It has been observed that he would have been a man of immense wealth had he been as good a prospector as he was an explorer and a statesman. Seventeen years before Bailey found Coolgardie, Lord Forrest crossed the site of the goldfield that was one of the scenes of the gold rush.

Lord Forrest was Commissioner of Crown Lands and Surveyor-General of Western Australia, with a seat in both the Executive and Legislative Councils, from 1883 to 1890, and in that year he became first Premier of the native State under responsible Government. He held the reins of government for ten successive years, and was largely, if not wholly, responsible for the bold developmental policy that marked that period in Western Australia. Having helped to frame the Federal Constitution, he relinquished the State Premiership to join the Commonwealth Ministry, and has sat in the House of Representatives for Swan since 1901. He was Postmaster-General and afterwards Minister for Defence in the Barton Government, 1901-3; Minister for Home Affairs in the Deakin Ministry, 1903-4; and Federal Treasurer in the successive Deakin and Cook Administrations—a post which he again occupies in the present Federal Ministry. He was Acting Prime Minister during Mr. Deakin's visit to England in 1907. A staunch Imperialist, his great public services have been liberally rewarded. He was created a C.M.G. in 1882, K.C.M.G. 1891, G.C.M.G. 1901, and a P.C. in 1897. He also carries the degree of LL.D. (Hon. Cambridge and Adelaide), is a Knight of the Order of the Crown of Italy, and is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society.

One of the strongest advocates of the trans-Australian railway, a long-cherished dream of his was to witness its construction. In the days when Lord Forrest was a political force in State affairs—a period when there was not the paucity of money that now makes itself felt in the western State—his Government authorised the expenditure of money on developmental projects with almost prodigal liberality, but the fruits of all those works—some of them of immense magnitude, notably the goldfields water scheme and the Fremantel harbour works—have all been reaped by a people who are markedly appreciative of the dominant part that he has played in their general welfare.

When a few years back the question of State Governors was prominently before the public, it was frequently urged in Western Australia that as a fitting and crowning reward for his notable services to his native country, Lord Forrest should be the first locally-appointed Governor of Western Australia. There are few prominent visitors to the western State who had not open welcome to the newly-created Baron's old home, "The Bungalow," which had a frontage to two of the principal streets of the city of Perth. With its sloping lawns and big, shady trees, its position was unique, for it was in the heart of the city, and was surrounded by business premises. The jubilee of Lord Forrest's public service was the occasion of notable celebrations in Perth and at Bunbury, his birthplace, about three years ago.

MAY STILL SIT AS MEMBER FOR SWAN.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The announcement of Lord Forrest's elevation to the peerage raised the question in political circles as to whether the new peer would be able to retain his seat in the House of Representatives. When the matter was referred to the Solicitor-General, Sir Robert Garran, however, he declared that there was nothing whatever in the Australian Constitution to prevent Lord Forrest from sitting in the House of Representatives.

Lord Forrest was too ill to attend a meeting of the Federal Cabinet this afternoon, but the congratulations of his colleagues were conveyed to him at his rooms at the Grand Hotel. The Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, stated that the Cabinet was extremely gratified at this sterling recognition of the many and great services of the Treasurer on behalf of Australia and the Empire. All Ministers hoped that Lord Forrest might be speedily restored to health.

STORAGE WEIRS ON THE MURRAY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Water Commission has submitted a report to the Minister for Water Supply, Mr. Clarke, stating that the best site so far discovered for a storage weir to lock the Murray waters was at a point on the Murray just below the junction of the Mitta Mitta River. This would have the effect of transforming the river flats from Tallangatta above the Mitta Mitta River to the Murray, and to Thologolong on the Upper Murray, into the storage reservoir. Under the scheme the area of river flats submerged would be 22,000 acres in Victoria, and about 11,000 acres in New South Wales. The estimated cost of the scheme is £4,663,000, and of this it is proposed that the Commonwealth should contribute £1,000,000, and Victoria, New South Wales, and South Australia £1,221,000 each. Residents and landholders in the districts mentioned, who take exception to the proposal, have submitted an alternative proposal, that there should be three storage reservoirs at Tom Groggin, on the Upper Murray, at Gech, on the New South Wales side, and a third on the Upper Mitta River, at the junction of the Murray. Though not impressed by the proposals for three storage reservoirs, the commission has agreed that there should be a further survey of the land covering the three storage sites, providing that the New South Wales authorities agreed to participate in this survey.

RED CROSS EMBLEM.

WARNING BY THE MINISTER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Defence, Senator Pearce, said to-day that he found it necessary to warn again, not only the public, but also public and charitable institutions, against the use of the heraldic emblem of a Red Cross or the words "Red Cross" or "Geneva Cross." The only organisation in Australia which has a right to use this emblem outside the Army Medical Corps is the Red Cross Society and its associated branches. Public hospitals are not permitted to use the emblem. Instructions have been issued to all military commandants, with a view to taking legal action in cases of future contravention of the Act.

CINEMAS AT THE FRONT.

In response to a request from the military authorities abroad, the Australian Y.M.C.A. has greatly increased its cinema services to Australian troops at the front. Mr. A. Turner, of Annandale, has been appointed by the Y.M.C.A. an honorary kinematograph director for work at the front, and will shortly leave Sydney.

SHIPBUILDING.

MISCONCEPTION BY THE UNIONS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Regret was expressed by the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) to-day that the Iron Trades Council had rejected the agreement entered into at a conference between representatives of the Commonwealth and the various unions concerned for the establishment of the shipbuilding industry in Australia. Mr. Hughes said that he was of the opinion that the rejection of the proposals arose through an unfortunate misconception of the meaning of the agreement. The Prime Minister said, for example, there was the question of hours. The council seemed to be under the impression that it meant working a man until he fell down from exhaustion. All that it did mean was that the men should work overtime if required at overtime rates. "The suggestion that the agreement involved industrial conscription," continued Mr. Hughes, "was ludicrous. It did not want an agreement to introduce industrial conscription. The Ministry had had that power since the beginning of the war, but had never attempted to enforce it. The idea that conscription could be enforced by agreement was on the face of it a contradiction of terms. The fact of the matter was that the Ministry had made a bona-fide attempt to establish a great industry, which, quite apart from the exigencies of the war and the urgent demand for ships, would prove of incalculable benefit to Australia and to the industries concerned. In doing this it had endeavoured to secure the co-operation of unionism, and all the unions, with the exception, he thought, of two, had through their representatives at the conference accepted the principles of the agreement." In conclusion, Mr. Hughes said he felt certain that the unions in their own interest, quite apart from that of the country, would see that the matter was of such tremendous importance that they would do everything in their power to promote it and assist it.

MR. HOLMAN'S COMPLAINT.

FEDERAL EVASIVENESS.

There has evidently been a serious misunderstanding between the State and Federal Governments over the proposals for the use of the Walsh Island engineering works for shipbuilding. Yesterday the State Premier, Mr. Holman, replied to the remarks made the previous day by the Prime Minister, Mr. Hughes, on this subject.

"Mr. Hughes is quite in error," said Mr. Holman, "in stating that there are any doubts in my mind, beyond those which have been raised by his own inability or unwillingness to furnish me with information as to what are his Government's intentions. The actual position is perfectly plain. It is as follows:—

"(1.) We have an offer from the Newcastle Steel Works Company immediately to take over Walsh Island in permanence, and to employ it in building whatever ships the Commonwealth Government requires.

"(2.) We have an offer from Mr. Hughes to take over the Walsh Island works on a five years' lease, with the option of purchase. If that option is exercised this will also amount to a permanent arrangement about Walsh Island. If the option is not exercised, clearly it will not. The New South Wales Cabinet has, however, desired me to inquire from Mr. Hughes as to whether the option would be exercised if we disposed of Walsh Island to the Commonwealth Government on those terms. I have made this inquiry several times, but up till now have failed to obtain any answer.

"The desire of our Government is to start shipbuilding, and at the same time to make a permanent settlement of the problem which Walsh Island presents. If, therefore, Mr. Hughes cannot offer us a permanent settlement; if he takes a lease with an option which he will not be able to exercise, we should prefer, and shall press upon the Commonwealth Government, the alternative settlement of their agreeing to authorise shipbuilding by the Newcastle Steel Company, thus opening the road for our making a permanent deal with them.

"That is the way the matter stands at the present time, but on the preliminary point, that is, the intentions of the Commonwealth Government as to permanence, we have been unable to get any information. I have made inquiries which have ranged from January 24 up till yesterday. My last word from Mr. Hughes was that he was writing me fully upon the subject. This was in a telegram dated February 4, but up till the present moment the letter has not come to hand.

"This being the position of the correspondence, I am at a loss to understand how Mr. Hughes can describe the present situation as arising out of any doubts that I entertain. We have no doubts about our position or preferences. Our only doubts are about what the Commonwealth intentions are, and for these Mr. Hughes himself is entirely responsible."

The Federal Government's shipbuilding scheme has been accepted by the Amalgamated Painters' Union.

UNION CONFERENCE.

GOVERNMENT PROPOSALS ENDORSED.

A conference of unions interested in the shipbuilding industry was held at the Sydney Trades Hall last night. The following unions were represented:—Boilermakers, Shipwrights, Amalgamated Carpenters, Blacksmiths, Electrical Trades, Australasian Engineers, Australian Clerks, Boat-builders, Sheet-metal Workers, Progressive Carpenters, Federated House and Ship Painters, Moulders, Plumbers, Sail-makers, Ship Painters, and Dockers, Operative Painters, Amalgamated Society of Engineers. Mr. Sturgess (vice-president of the New South Wales Labour Council) presided. Mr. M'Lachlan, organiser of the Australasian Society of Engineers in Victoria, and Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C., secretary to the Labour Council, were also present.

The following motion was carried:—"That it is the opinion of this conference that the agreement is on all fours with the decisions of the June conference in Melbourne, and that the unions should therefore get to business and sign the agreement."

It was further resolved that the conference endorse the proposal of the Federal Government to establish the shipbuilding industry on national lines, with national ownership, and hoped that the Federal Government would be successful in securing the control of Walsh Island.

The conference adjourned till next Friday.

TRADES HALL DECISION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The agreement between the unions whose members would take part in the work of shipbuilding under the Commonwealth scheme and the Federal Ministry was again discussed by the Melbourne Trades Hall council last night. At the outset a motion was moved: "That a committee of seven be appointed to go through the form of agreement and eliminate any obnoxious clauses."

An amendment to this was moved as follows: "That any union persisting in signing the agreement against the wish of this council be expelled."

The amendment was negatived, and a further amendment to the original motion was submitted in the following terms: "That this council refuses to allow any agreement to be made which will forfeit the rights that have taken so many years to secure, and that the Trades Hall councils in other States be immediately advised of this resolution." This amendment was agreed to in spite of the continued opposition of almost all the delegates of the unions directly interested in the scheme.

MR. HUGHES AND THE NATIONAL COUNCIL.

On Monday night next the adjourned meeting of the National Council is to be held in Sydney. Interest centres in the meeting, because of the adjourned discussion on Mr. Clive Teece's resolution calling upon Mr. Hughes to retire from the Prime Ministership, which was moved a month ago. From numerous centres come reports of resolutions carried at meetings of suburban and country branches of the National party expressing confidence in Mr. Hughes, and pronounced opposition to the attitude taken by Mr. Teece and others of the National Council. The latest reports of this character are from North Sydney, Dulwich Hill, and Abbotsford. It is thought likely that the resolution will be abandoned on Monday night. In any case, there would appear to be no prospects of its success.

SITE FOR AN ARSENAL.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Consideration was given by the Federal Cabinet to-day to the question of a site for an arsenal. The Prime Minister stated after the meeting that the site investigation committee had recommended that Tugerrangong, about nine miles from Canberra, should be chosen. The Cabinet had approved of the recommendation, and the work would be immediately started.

AMUSEMENTS.

CRITERION—"THE WILLOW TREE."

The final matinee of "The Willow Tree" will be given on Wednesday, and the last performance on Friday night, in which connection it should be noted that attendances have steadily increased since the opening. The exquisite beauty of the Oriental setting, and the poetic charm of the Japanese legend, on which the entire action of the play is founded, assist Kathlene Macdonell and Charles Waldron in creating the tender, wistful atmosphere to which the attraction of the whole is due.

"DADDY LONG LEGS."

Next Saturday there will be a revival of "Daddy Long Legs" at the Criterion, where Miss Macdonell made a great hit on her first arrival, a year ago as the whimsical, rebellious little heroine of Jean Webster's romantic love story. Mr. Chas. Waldron will be welcomed once more as the hard-shelled old bachelor, who falls hopelessly in love with the winsome ward he rescues from an orphan asylum.

HER MAJESTY'S—"THE BING BOYS."

"The Bing Boys" revue, with its 11 "panels" of dazzling spectacular effect, and its innumerable song and dance specialities, is drawing all Sydney to Her Majesty's Theatre, and the general impression is that the piece might run beyond Easter but for the annual Williamson pantomime. Minnie Love and Jack Cannot, in "If you were the Only Boy," Maie Baird and Clyde Cooke, in their dances, and a whole coterie of artists, contributed to the success of the entertainment, of which a matinee will be given to-day.

PALACE—"TURN TO THE RIGHT."

Owing to the remarkable success which has attended the "Turn to the Right" revival at the Palace Theatre, Messrs. J. and N. Tait announce that they have arranged for the season, which was to have finished on Friday next, to be extended for another week. In consequence the opening of the "Peg o' my Heart" season will be put back until February 23, when Sarah Allgood and other favourite artists, will make a welcome reappearance. The plans of the "Turn to the Right" season are at Nicholson's.

OPERA HOUSE—"ROBINSON CRUSOE."

Performances at 2.15 and 7.55 to-day will mark the progress of the Fuller pantomime at the Grand Opera House with Victor Prince as Robinson Crusoe, and Nellie Kolle as principal boy, backed by a series of smart specialties, including the Stoigs in "Motoring Upside-down," the Animated Shells, and the thrilling "Devil's Whirl." Various choral and dance features brighten the entertainment, the Dance of the Puritan Maids, the Beautiful Sea-nymphs Ballet, and the spectacular "At the Rainbow's End," ensuring applause.

STROLLERS AT THE PLAYHOUSE.

Saturdays and Thursdays are matinee days during the season of the Royal Strollers at the Playhouse, a little theatre that keeps Mr. Sydney James and his company intimately in touch with successive audiences. The popularity of the "Aladdin" Arabian nightmare is largely due to the pantomime experience of four of the artists in the same class of show in England, namely, Sydney James, Madeline Rossiter, George W. Desmond, and Josie Jackson. The lastnamed was in Fred. Starey's "Aladdin" at Exeter three years ago. Billy and his master appear as a feature in the first part.

TIVOLI THEATRE—"SAMPLES."

At 2.30 to-day, and again in the evening, the Hugh D. Macintosh management will produce the London Playhouse revue, "Samples" for the first time in Australia, and with a newly organised combination. This special caste will include Phil Smith, Guy and Rene Magley (Parisian dancers), Eileen Boyd, after an absence of eight years in England, Nellie Leach, Marie Eaton, Hugh Huntley, Celia Ghiloni, Ethel Vaugn, Nelman and Kennedy, Frank Greene, Jean Keith, Baby Zillah, Elsie Parkes, and a new chorus and ballet. Picturesque scenery by the Cliats will form an additional feature.

TOWN HALL POPULAR CONCERTS.

The second of the Saturday popular concerts will be given at the Town Hall to-night, when Mr. Joseph Bradley will conduct the full chorus of the Royal Philharmonic Society in the Bridal number from "Lohengrin," "O, Gladsome Light" ("The Golden Legend"), and "Hail to Thee (Gounod); and the String Orchestra in a prelude by Grieg, and other pieces. Miss Ella Caspers will sing Dalila's aria, "O Love from Thy Power" and "Sink, Red Sun" (Del Riego). Miss Mabel Batchelor's numbers will include "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," with flute obbligato, by John Lemmone, who will also play solos. Signor Cesaroni will sing "Infelice" and the "Toreador's Song." Mr. Vern Barnett will be the organist.

THE CALEDONIAN SOCIETY.

The Caledonian Society of Sydney will give their monthly concert at St. James's Hall to-night, at 8, when Chieftain S. Clarke will preside. Mr. W. Lorimer will direct, and Miss J. Macfadyen will accompany. The contributing artists will be Misses Winifred Purvis, Irene Rich, Lilian Gibson, Messrs. A. E. Benham, Richard M'Clelland, Piper R. Donaldson, and Isa and Clyde Lorimer.

SOUTH SYDNEY BAND CONCERT.

South Sydney Champion Band, under Mr. W. Ryder, will hold a concert in the Glaciarium to-morrow evening, commencing at 8, when one of their fine contest selections will be rendered. Mr. Sid. Macdonald and other leading artists are assisting.

THE WALTER BENTLEY FUND.

The honorary organiser has received a letter from the Premier (Mr. W. A. Holman, M.L.A.), expressing his sympathy with his esteemed friend, Mr. Bentley, and assuring the testimonial committee that they can rely upon him to do what he can to forward the movement in aid of the popular tragedian. Mr. Bentley is still coping with his work at the studio.

THE MEMORY OF CHARLES DICKENS.

Last Thursday was the one hundred and sixth anniversary of the birth of Charles Dickens, and nearly forty-eight years have passed since he died, leaving a vacant chair in his study and a vacant place in popular English literature. Yet his memory is cherished by the new generations springing up amongst us, and for these the Rev. George Walters has prepared a new recital for next Tuesday evening at the Hyde Park Unitarian Church. An attractive selection of pieces will be presented.

ANCELON-CHAPMAN RECITALS.

The first of this year's series of the Ancelon School of Elocution recitals, to be held in St. James's Hall on Thursday evening, the 21st inst., will be in aid of the Voluntary Workers' Cafe fund. The ladies of that association promise a good house. There will be incidental music by Torrillo's orchestra. The plan will open at Paling's on Monday.

THEATRE ROYAL—"THE CONQUEROR."

The new William Fox film drama, "The Conqueror," will be presented at the Theatre Royal to-day from 1 to 6, followed by a single session only at 8 p.m. This sensational piece, with William Farnum as the hero, will show the robbery at the Town Hall, the pursuit and capture of the highwayman, and the rescue of the heroine and convent nuns from an attack by Mexicans.

THE STRAND.

De Groen's orchestra provides the music for all the evening sessions at the Strand, in Pitt-street, opposite Farmer's. To-day a new bill will be presented, which will show on the screen Grace Darmond and Earle Williams in the Vitagraph photo-play, "In the Balance," and Mrs. Vernon Castle in "Sylvia of the Secret Service." These films will also be screened next week.

UNION PICTURE THEATRES.

Commencing on Monday next, "The Lone Wolf," showing Hazel Dawn and Bert Lytell, will be the chief attraction at the Crystal Palace. Part 10 of the "History of the War" and the "English Gazette" will also be shown. "The Soul of Satan," a five-act Fox production, with Gladys Brockwell, and "The Fettered Woman," a Vitagraph play, with Alice Joyce in the principal part, will be shown all next week at the Empress Theatre. "The Guilty Party" and "The Hayseeds' Melbourne Cup," a four-act comedy, produced by Beaumont Smith during Cup Week, will be screened all the week at the Lyric Theatre, George-street.

WEST'S OLYMPIA.

The matinee show to-day at West's Olympia will start at 2.30. In the change of programme on Monday next the new films will include the first episode of "The Fatal Ring" and June Caprice in "Every Girl's Dream."

WADDINGTON'S PICTURE THEATRES.

"The Eternal Mother," a five-act Metro production, in which Ethel Barrymore appears, supported by Frank Mills, will be screened all next week at the Globe Theatre, supplemented by a comedy. "Dead Shot Baker," in which William Duncan and Carol Holloway appear, will be screened at the Grand, supplemented by a two-act Keystone comedy, "Won by a Fowl." "His Convict Wife," the six-act Australian drama, produced by Jack Gavan, introducing the producer, Ethel Bashford, and Charles Villiers, will be shown all next week at the Majestic Theatre, with a new story of "The Seven Pearls" and a Keystone comedy. "Because of a Woman," the first of the new seven-act Triangle productions, in which Belle Bennett has the principal part, will be screened for three nights, commencing Monday next, at the King's Cross, Darlinghurst. Other attractions will be "The Seven Pearls" and a Keystone comedy.

QUEENSLAND FLOODS IN PICTURES.

EDLICK'S PALLADIUM.

On Thursday night at the Palladium there was a large attendance at the fourth fancy dress carnival of the season, when prizes in the various costume competitions were awarded. There is to be another harbour carnival on Wednesday next. The Palladium will be open this evening.

LORD MAYOR'S FUND CONCERT.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the committee of the staff of the Municipal Council, Sydney, it was decided to hold a concert on March 20, 1918, at the lower hall in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund. Their object is to raise £500. The concert direction is in the hands of A. E. Y. Benham. Messrs. Gill and Robertson are hon. secretary and treasurer respectively.

LITHGOW'S SLUMS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Minister for Works and Railways, Mr. Watt, recently paid a visit to Lithgow to inquire into the housing conditions of the men employed at the small arms factory. Mr. Watt was astounded at the conditions he found there. Large families were living in two rooms, and the crowding was as bad as in the worst part of the London slums. The Federal Cabinet to-day decided that provision should be made for housing the employees and their families, and it had also agreed to make arrangements, either with the local governing board of New South Wales or in some other way, for the construction of a sufficient number of suitable dwellings.

Mr. Hughes also stated that the Cabinet had decided that whatever might be done in regard to the establishment of another small arms factory on the arsenal site, a factory at Lithgow must be continued for a number of years, at all events.

FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

LIVE STOCK.

The Federal Commissioner of Taxation (Mr. R. Ewing) points out that the income tax regulation dealing with sales of purchased live stock provides that where stock which has been purchased is kept separate and apart from other stock, it shall be shown at the purchase price at the end of each years in which it is retained. Where such purchased stock is sold during the year of purchase owing to adverse seasons, and the business is not one of stock dealing, a separate account of these purchased stock should be kept, so that the average value of the remainder of the live stock carried by the owner shall not be affected by the cost price of the purchased stock mentioned.

WAR TIME PROFITS.

OFFICIAL DECISIONS.

The following queries and official answers have been supplied by the Federal Commissioner for Taxation:—

Are land taxes and rates and taxes paid by an owner of a business deductible irrespective of whether they are on business premises or not?

All rates and taxes paid in connection with a business are deductible, irrespective of the fact that part of the profits of the business may be exempt. Where an individual owns a business he is not entitled to deduct from his business profit any rates and taxes which he pays in respect of property not connected with his business.

Are partners' deposits which bear interest part of the capital of the business?

Money put into a partnership business by partners may be treated as capital of the business, irrespective of the fact that the money is put in at interest only.

The Federal Commissioner of Taxation has ruled that a taxpayer cannot be given the benefit of Section 16 (4), where there were four pre-war trade years, and the average of the best three of the years was 25 per cent. below the fourth year.

Where a recognised commercial traveller is an employee he is exempt under Section 8 (c). Where a person who is not an employee represents principals for sale of their goods, and he demonstrates to the satisfaction of the department that his primary business is to travel in Australia for the purpose of selling these goods, he will be exempted as a commercial traveller.

"Business" for the purpose of the War Time Profits Tax Assessment Act includes "any profession or trade, and any transaction not in the course of a person's business for the sale and purchase of any commodity." In the event of a walk-in walk-out sale of a pastoralist property, where the land and working stock is sold at a profit, the definition of "business" would not operate to make such sale taxable.

USE OF PROFITS.

The Federal Commissioner of Taxation (Mr. R. Ewing) states he has been informed of an opinion which is gaining currency among business men that war-time profits tax would not be charged on excess profits which have been invested in entirely new businesses. The Commissioner points out that this opinion is quite erroneous, and should not be encouraged. The law imposes tax on all excess profits irrespective of the use made of them, except in the case of mining companies. In regard to mining companies, the law contains special provision in section 15 (7) (b), which reads as follows:—"In the case of a mining business, other than mining for coal, there shall be deducted, in addition to any other deductions allowed by this Act, so much of the profits of the accounting period as is appropriated for development or new plant. Provided that so much of the profits so appropriated as would, if they had not been appropriated, have been war-time profits, and which have not been expended for the purpose for which they were appropriated by the end of the accounting period next succeeding that in which the profits were derived, shall be liable to tax in the financial year in which the end of the latter accounting period falls at the rate which was applicable at the time of appropriation."

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Chemicals were very firm yesterday. Caustic soda was selling at extreme rates. For small lots 90/ a cwt was asked. A little parcel business was done in 76/77 per cent. at £86 a ton. No export licenses can be obtained in England, and the consequence is that no further shipments are being made. Shipments from America are uncertain owing to shipping difficulties and the congestion on the wharfs. Very little business was done in soda ash, the disabilities of the fixed price—£2 above cost—still operating. It is believed that there is a fair amount in hand. Japanese powdered sulphur was quoted at £15, and Chilian powdered, which was said to be almost equal to Italian flowers, at £28. Arsenic was in demand, as some of the Australian producers were said to be short. As high as £84 net was quoted for white, and £75 for grey. Calcutta saltpetre was worth £85 a ton. Rosin was rather easy. Lately it has been uncertain property. For G grade £29 a ton was quoted. Strychnine was placed at 10/ an ounce.

Oils were steady at late rates. A little Blundell and Spence's was doled out at 8/4 and 8/6 for raw and boiled respectively. Whitelead was unchanged at £72, though a little Champion's, which was still available, sold at 85/ a cwt. Turpentine was quoted at 6/ for distributing lots, though for parcel lots 5/9 was offered. Castor oil was well held at 6/. Some sales of shellac were made at 3/3.

Fair sales of fish were made, the demand strengthening as Lent approaches. Red Alaska salmon sold at 15/6. Canadian fresh herrings changed hands at 12/3, and herrings in tomato sauce at 12/9. Some houses are obtaining only 14 per cent. of their orderings of American fish. The price of wheatmeal has been fixed wholesale in 28lb bags at 15/ per cwt, and retail in 28lb bags at 4/4½ per package, and in 3lb bags at 6d per packet. Outside the County of Cumberland these rates, plus the cost of transport, rule. For Bensdorf's Royal Dutch cocoa the prices have been fixed—wholesale, ¼lb tins, at 12/3 dozen; ½lb tins, 23/ a dozen; retail, ¼lb tins, 1/3; half 2/4 each. With the usual provision as to cost of transport, semolina prices have also been fixed—wholesale in 28lb bags 16/8 per cwt, retail 4/10½ per package, and in 3lb bags 7d.

At the sales yesterday 280 packages of Ceylon teas, out of 380 offered, were sold to spirited competition. Prices, which were at full rates, ranged from 10d to 1/0½.

The restriction on the importation of terne plates not manufactured in the United Kingdom has been withdrawn.

Jute was steady yesterday. Woolpacks sold in parcel lots at 5/3, and in smaller quantities at 5/4½. Branbags were quoted at 9/3, and cornsacks on spot were nominally 9/6. Some business was done in 18oz hessian at 11½d net and 14oz hessian at 9d to 9½d, according to delivery, the later delivery being 9d.

THE EARLY CLOSING RAILWAY.

A correspondent writes to complain of the early closing of the Darling Harbour railway yard for the receipt of outward goods traffic. The hour for closing is 3 o'clock in the afternoon, although at one time, and that when there was less traffic, it was open till 5 p.m. Evidently this, he says, is progressing backward. The Darling Harbour Bridge is generally closed to allow of the passage of a vessel just about this time, and as it remains closed for about a quarter of an hour, the result is that several teams are shut out of the railway yard, in consequence of which the goods must be taken back to the warehouse, thereby increasing cartage charges. There are further disadvantages. Very often on this account, trucks which are made up of part consignments are missed, and extra freight is then charged. Our correspondent asks whether some arrangement could not be made between the Railway Department and the Harbour Trust, whereby the swing bridge would not be open for at least half an hour before 3 p.m.

NOTES.

The Great Britain Sluicing Company reports for the past fortnight that the Britain plant, after cleaning up on January 18, resumed sluicing, opening out a paddock in deep, hard ground on the north side of the lead, and stripping in that direction was in progress. The Y. Creek Plant cleaned up on January 22, and stripping of a new paddock was commenced. Occasional patches of clay were still in evidence, and also some very hard cement. Difficulty was experienced in keeping up sufficient supplies of firewood.

QUEENSLAND FLOODS.

ROCKHAMPTON, Friday.

All the rivers are now falling slowly. Up to the present, so far as can be seen, the damage to streets and lanes here is not so great as was anticipated. There have been several subsidences in various parts of the city. It is expected there will be a good deal of damage at Yeppen Crossing, where a strong current has been running. Boats were despatched conveying passengers and mails for Mount Morgan to-day from the top of Dawson-road. Passengers for West and Mount Morgan will be boated to-morrow morning from the same place.

CITY COAL SUPPLY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir.—I notice that Mr. Meagher said: Why not call on John Brown and E. P. Simpson regarding the Balmain colliery? These remarks were made by Mr. Meagher owing to Mr. Gilpin stating that an independent man should be called in to review the matter from a commercial standpoint, and report to the council.

I may state for the benefit of the council that said colliery was under offer to a syndicate of eight wealthy Sydney commercial men and the A.A. Co. and myself, some years ago, long before it was purchased by the present shareholders of the company. I was requested to visit the colliery and assured that if I was satisfied after my inspection it would be purchased, the company formed, and I would be its managing director, without any interference whatever.

I visited the colliery and then advised those gentlemen not to have anything to do with it.

Here you have my reply free to the council.

I may add that I gave my advice to Mr. Meagher and Mr. John Brunton some time ago regarding what they should do to procure coal, and I feel confident if the council adopted it they could not improve upon it, as they would get the best coal and obtain the best results.

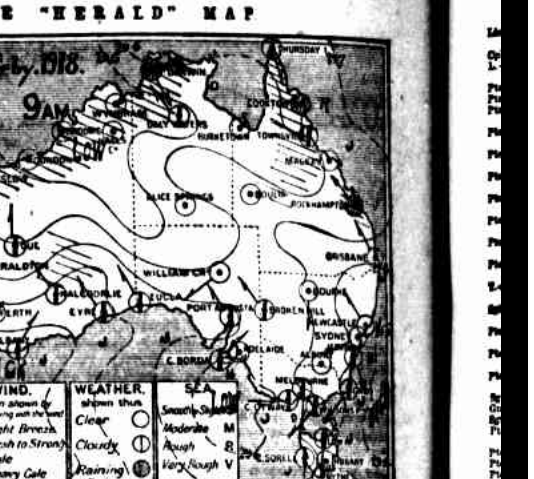
I feel sure Mr. Simpson would prefer to listen to sweet music from a competent musician playing the harp into his ears rather than entering into a correspondence such as the City Council proposes.

I am, etc.,
JOHN BROWN.

Feb. 8.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP



During the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. on Friday, due to the continued lowering of pressure over Australia and New Zealand, the indications for the general rain anticipated as far back as last Tuesday are not quite so favourable. The slump in pressure has been more pronounced over Victoria, Tasmania, and our Western districts in a lesser degree in tropical parts, in the extreme S.W. corner and on the eastern seaboard. This in itself represents a somewhat more favourable outlook, although pointing to the development of rain and thunder, for with relatively high barometric pressure over the South Pacific shores, there should result (as is usually the prelude to increasing rain prospects) a flow of the moist-laden east and N.E. winds from oceanic parts to far inland, where the lowest pressure values are shown on the chart. Although the rain has been very tardy in its development, sultriness over the State generally is becoming increasingly marked, and with further accessions of moist air should result in thunderstorms and rain in various parts. Isolated strong local squalls are also possible with these hot, humid conditions. Judging from the meagre reports from Queensland, although cloud is still present over Central areas, the unsettled weather is mostly confined to the Peninsula districts. It is also unsettled, with rain in the Territory and over a considerable portion of Western and South Australia. In our State isolated thunder has occurred in the N.E. quarter. Present indications favour scattered showers and thunderstorms, with sultry N.E. winds and a cool change later in Southern districts, with showers.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally west winds in the Bight, extending to the Straits. No data from the West.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Mr. Hughes is to meet representatives of the Chambers of Manufactures, Commerce, and allied organisations on Tuesday next, when he will discuss with them the scheme outlined in Sydney some months ago for the organisation of Australian trade and industry.

MENANGLE PICNIC GYMKHANA.

It is the intention of Brigadier-General V. M. Antill, C.B., C.M.G., to hold a monthly picnic gymkhana at the Light Horse camp at Menangle, not only with a view of adding to the amenities of life in camp, but with the intention of stimulating recruiting for the Light Horse. It is not sufficiently and generally understood that a man on enlisting may now elect to be allotted to the Light Horse, in virtue of the recent order. In spite of the general misapprehension on the point, General Antill has found that the first gymkhana acted as a considerable stimulus to recruiting. The valuable experience gained in the organisation of the first of these monthly events will be applied to the second which takes place on Friday the 22nd instant, and all ranks hope that their friends and relations will contribute to its success by putting in an appearance.

MR. COCKS AND THE REFERENDUM.

At the last meeting of the St. Leonards Branch of the National Party a vote of confidence was carried in Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.A. Mr. Cocks explained that he felt his pledge at the last election prevented him from taking part in the last referendum campaign. He had offered to resign his seat, in order to be free to take the platform, but was counselled not to do so by the Premier, on whose advice he refrained.

STABBING AFFRAY.

A stabbing affray occurred upon a French sailing ship lying at the Vacuum Oil Company's wharf, Pulpit Point, last night.

An argument broke out amongst some members of the crew over the ownership of a parcel. Subsequently Jean Salaum, a Frenchman, was returning to his quarters, when he was suddenly attacked from the rear and stabbed with a knife, the wound inflicted being a serious one. Salaum was removed to Sydney Hospital by the Civil Ambulance.

Subsequently the police arrested a member of the crew named Joe le Bourdiec, a Frenchman, and charged him with inflicting grievous bodily harm.

ALCOHOL AND INDUSTRIAL POWER.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The question of the production and utilisation of alcohol for power purposes in Australia is being investigated by a special committee appointed by the Commonwealth Advisory Council of Science and Industry, consisting of Professor Lyle (chairman), Messrs. W. R. Grimwade, W. N. Kernot, H. V. McKay, and G. Lightfoot (secretary), and a comprehensive and valuable report reviewing the whole situation, and giving the results of investigations so far made has been issued. The committee recommends that, in order to develop the use of alcohol for power purposes, and to encourage the production of the raw material upon which the manufacture of power alcohol depends: (1) The manufacture and use in Australia should be permitted of "power alcohol" denatured with two per cent. of distillates obtained from coal tar at a temperature of from 170 degrees centigrade to 230 degrees centigrade; (2) that an allowance at the rate of 3d per gallon be granted by the Commonwealth on "power alcohol" denatured in the above manner, and manufactured in Autralia from raw materials produced by way of reimbursement of the extra cost caused by fiscal restrictions on the manufacture of alcohol; (3) that a bonus also at the rate of 3d per gallon be granted by the Commonwealth Government on such "power alcohol" in order to encourage its manufacture, and to develop the primary industries on which the supply of the necessary raw material depends.

SOLDIER'S BOGUS WIFE.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

At the Ballarat Police Court this morning Sarah Jane Mott, aged 27, was charged with marrying Edward John Stokes on August 26, 1916, her first husband, William David Mott, being then alive at Murrayville. She was committed for trial. The evidence showed that Mott met Stokes, a soldier, on a train journey between Murrayville and Maryborough. While they were in the train they decided to get married. After Stokes sailed for the front Mott returned to Murrayville, and resumed relations with her husband. She wrote to her mother at Ballarat, instructing her to draw the money which Stokes had allotted to her. The mother drew £30 5s in a lump sum and £3 for ten months afterwards. Stokes was invalided home last year, and his inquiries with regard to his supposed wife led to his placing the matter in the hands of the police.

ASSIST THE MOULT BY PROPER FEEDING. The "Poultry Bulletin"—December 10th, says:—"Respecting foods the birds will require such as are rich in albuminoids. A most valuable addition to the menu during the moulting period is MEGGITT'S LINSEED OIL MEAL. It not only assists in the growth of new feathers, but it builds up the constitution of the birds partaking of it in a wonderful manner. At all seasons of the year it is a most valuable adjunct to the poultry ration, but at moulting time it is actually indispensable."

FOLLOW A SYSTEM. Your Poultry-keeping operations will be more successful and more pleasant if you carry them out systematically. This particularly applies to feeding methods. More eggs are lost through the wrong use of good foods than is dreamed of. If you want to cut out the losses and simplify feeding methods, and at the same time secure the maximum output from your birds, then follow "Thorpe's Way." There is a "Thorpe's food" for every Poultry feed need, Chick Food for the chickens, Growing foods for growing stock, and Laying Foods for the layers. Thorpe's Foods are not extra expense, but sound economy.

THE TYRES WITH THE TOUGH TREAD.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

On the shell-shattered roads in France and on other War Fronts, Palmer Cord Tyres are daily withstanding strains and stresses that mean utter destruction to the ordinary canvas tyre. The tough tread of the Palmer Tyre—the toughest ever turned out of a factory—means many more road-miles per tyre and per gallon of petrol. Ask for our Booklet, which gives THE PROOFS!

BE UP TO DATE.

BUY AT HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

This suggestion is more important than you think, more particularly when it applies to private residential property. Your home must be an investment which implies that you should get a good price for it WHEN you want to sell.

Unless your Home is so modern and up to date as to make a direct appeal to the other man, your chance of realising are limited. We do not infer that all Haberfield residents buy purposely to sell at a later date, but we do claim that the distinction and up-to-dateness of the present Bungalow will be hard to excel.

INSPECT THE NEW £1075 BUNGALOW

This is quite the latest. In handy position, standing in a good allotment of land, this Brick Cottage, with slate roof, of handsome design, contains drawing, dining, breakfast rooms, spacious bedrooms, kitchen, wide verandahs, all offices. Price is only £1075.

We can arrange terms to suit buyer. Interest is the lowest, and cash can be paid at any time. We are at your convenience on any day. Our advice is free, and we shall esteem it a pleasure to show you over the Suburb this afternoon or on any day that will suit you.

ALL THE WORLD WANTS SOMETHING BETTER!

Men and women, who work for wages, have one especially strong desire—they wish to make progress. If they were satisfied with their earnings, they would be disregarding the laws of Nature—which are opposed to a contented spirit.

Nature urges men and women to work and strive for something better. The "self-made" man is to be found everywhere—but more men have risen from the ranks in Australia, in proportion to the population, than in any other country. You probably know of many self-made men—did you ever acknowledge to yourself the reason for their success?

IT IS NO SECRET. Study in spare time has been the cause of the progress of Australia's best-known men and women. Before they could EARN more they had to LEARN more.

You may not believe that you can become great, but you SHOULD believe that you can earn more money IF YOU ARE WORTH MORE. Don't spend all your spare time in pleasure; devote three or four evenings a week to preparation for a better position with more money.

STOTT'S CORRESPONDENCE COLLEGE has improved the earning power of over 14,000 students and over 4000 are now studying for positions with higher wages. Wouldn't you like to know how we have done so much for other Australians? Wouldn't you like to make a determined effort to lift yourself out of the rut? As it costs nothing to inquire, you would be foolish to lose this chance of learning whether "there is anything in it."

ACCOUNTANCY.
THE PROOF.

The success of our students at the examinations is the best possible proof of the efficiency of our methods of teaching Accountancy. Not only do they win the majority of the Honours Places, but invariably pass much above the average percentage of all candidates. These are our figures for 1916 and 1917 for the two principal Institutes in Australia. (Space does not permit showing results for all other Institutes.)

YEAR 1916.

Incorporated Institute of Victoria:—
April, Inter.	Presented 33,	Passed 21
Oct., Inter.	Presented 26,	Passed 24
April, Final	Presented 30,	Passed 29

Nov., Inter.	Presented 53,	Passed 51
May, Final	Presented 17,	Passed 16
Nov., Final	Presented 25,	Passed 23
TOTAL, 1916	Presented 267,	Passed 240

YEAR 1917.

Incorporated Institute of Victoria:—

May, Final	Presented 43,	Passed 41
Nov., Final	Presented 68,	Passed 62
TOTAL, 1917	Presented 492,	Passed 447

Our total results these two Institutes alone aggregate 606 for 1916 and 1917.

Our grand aggregate to December 31st, 1917, totals over 2800, with other results still to come.

These facts and figures cannot be lightly passed by by any young man desirous of qualifying.

We stake our reputations as Public Accountants for over twenty years on the accuracy of every figure and result we publish and every statement we make.

The majority of the men qualifying as Accountants in Australia and New Zealand are students of Hemingway and Robertson.

"Remington House,"
Liverpool-street, Sydney.

Dear Sir,

Your letter re examination results to hand, and I beg to thank you for your congratulations and good wishes for future success contained therein.

I should like to place on record my appreciation of your efficient and eminently successful methods of coaching by correspondence. The fact that I was able, after a year's study with your college, to pass the intermediate examination in all sections provides, I think, conclusive proof of this.

I may also add that your examiner in Bookkeeping has always given me any help and information which I required, and has been of very great assistance indeed in this respect.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.) CLARENCE E. SPENCE.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS,
SEE DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES
ABOUT YOUR TEETH TO-DAY.

Infection through the mouth is five times as likely as through the nose, according to a certain Doctor. This assertion is easy to believe. Persons with unsound teeth and diseased gums may readily harbour the organisms of any specific ailment, and, while not suffering themselves from that disorder, may be perfectly capable of communicating it to others.

With this in mind you can readily see how important it is for you to keep your teeth in perfect condition.

DENTIST PHILLIP MOSES'
PAINLESS METHODS

enable the most nervous person to have his or her teeth attended to without the slightest pain or unpleasantness. I have a special apparatus which enables me to Drill and Fill any tooth entirely without pain. This is not only of great benefit to the patient, but enables me to do the work thoroughly; extractions by my special method are absolutely painless, and perfectly safe for all ages. I make a general offer to forfeit £5 if you experience the least twinge of pain, and, furthermore, if you can find a patient whom I have hurt I will give you £10.

If artificial teeth are required, I can supply you with these by Bridge or Platework, in a manner which will be entirely satisfactory. My Platework is light, strong, and gives perfect comfort; I do the highest quality work, and back it with a written guarantee—this means that if a filling should fail or a tooth break any time within 5 years, I will repair it free. Call and let me examine your teeth. My expert advice is free, and you will be under no obligation.

INSTRUCTION IN SANITARY SCIENCE.

The attention of Shire and Municipal Officers and the Public in this State is invited to the Correspondence Course of Instruction in Sanitary Science conducted by the Sydney Technical College. This course has been specially designed to prepare for positions as SANITARY INSPECTORS ladies and gentlemen who are debarred, owing to distance from Sydney, from attending the classes at the Central Technical College. Persons resident in the City and Suburbs are not eligible to take this course, and must attend the ordinary college lectures. This course, besides preparing students for the Sanitary Inspector's Certificate issued by the College, covers the requirements for the Royal Sanitary Institute's Certificate as Inspector of Nuisances. Public Health administration offers a most promising field to ambitious men not afraid of hard work; and this course enables them to qualify for higher, more responsible, better-paid positions. Pamphlets, giving full information as to this course, may be had on application to
